How We Die

(Copyright, 1926, by the Star Company)

WASP WAISTS are coming back, says fashion. The loose dress conceals a tightly laced corset, making the already too thin woman look thinner. England is interested because one young woman, thus secretly tightened, ate heartily and died because Nature could not fight against the outrageously tight lacing.

That warning will do no good, if lacing is the fashion. Women take a medicine to make them thin, knowing that it weakens the heart and eventually causes death.

THE LONDON EXPRESS, owned by Beaverbrook, well informed, says Mussolini, preparing war against Turkey, will make conquests in Aegean. Perhaps he will roam those regions, restoring ruined Roman temples, as Lucullus, to oblige his patriotic young Greek girl friend, restored temples in Greece.

IT WOULD BE interesting, Mussolini and Kemal Pasha fighting. The latter, you remember sent word to Mussolini: "Make war against me and your trouble will be to find burying room for your dead Italians."

SUCH A WAR would show how much of the Italian Bonaparte survives in Mussolini, how much of the old Mohammedan conquerors in Kemal.

SKIPPER MORRISSEY LUFFS INTO THE LEAD AROUND THIRD BUOY

Gloucester, Oct. 11.—Boiling through the choppy water off Gloucester, the schooners Columbia and Henry Ford, footed a fairly even race today, with one leading and then the other, but with Henry Ford footing in the fore when 25 of the 40 miles had been covered.

Ford was only a scant few lengths out in front, however, as the schooners, competing in the first of the fishermen's races to determine America's champion schooner and crew, squared away for the final 15 miles.

This lead was won by virtue of Captain Clayton Morrissey luffing his Ford as he took her round the third bouy in a bit of keen sailing that killed off Captain Ben Pine's slight advantage, held for many miles.

The wind, which had been a 25-mile velocity out of the Northeast at the start of the brush, had hauled more to North-Northeast when the 25-mile mark was passed and was a bit lighter.

But the skippers had laid out every inch of sail to catch the vagrant whisks and the craft were making good time over the course.

Because of the evenness of the contest, it had developed into a test of wits and seamanship, with both skippers apparently equally matched, also.

Official times of the schooners at the third mark were given as: Henry Ford, 1:00:16, and Columbia, 1:01:26, gifing the Ford one minute and ten seconds margin.

At the start of the race the Columbia churned churned across the line two seconds in the lead of the Ford.

Twenty minutes later the doughty captain of the Columbia had out-manoeuvred his rival, Captain Clayton Morrissey, and was more than

New York, Oct. 11—James J. Tunney, U. S. M. C. Reserve, the same young gentleman who is "Gene" Tunney heavyweight boxing champion of the world, is about to spring as big a surprise as he did in his recent pugilistic engagement in Philadelphia.

Only a precious few are cognizant of the fact that the formal tidings of his matrimonial intentions will be made before the close of the present Winter.

They do say—and I give this simply as gossip at the present writing—Gene's engagement will land him on the front pages of the dailies from the Atlantic to the Pacific. For his reported bride-to-be is said to be rich, "of" the social register and possessed of a daddy who is connected with the Rockefellers.

TALMADGE ROMANCE

CONNIE WILL SEEK QUIET DIVORCE
With an agreement to live apart, Constance Talmadge is Hollywood bound, while her husband, Captain Alistair Mackintosh, will leave soon for his home in England. A divorce suit will be filed soon.

New York, Oct. 11.—Constance Talmadge and her English husband have agreed to live apart. The first authentic story of the marital separation was given to me by Miss Talmadge just before she boarded the train for California.

Film stars are unfortunate in being the center of the limelight and the target for all sorts of malicious gossip, and for this reason both Captain Mackintosh and Connie steadfastly denied there had been any trouble when the rumors of a rift in the domestic lute started circulating in social and theatrical circles.

Connie is not, however, the kind of a girl who can sail under false colors. She is one of those refreshingly truthful people who call a spade a spade come what may. Instead of sidestepping the issue when I questioned her she frankly admitted she and "Al" had agreed upon an amicable separation without scandal or useless back biting.

A little later there will probably be a quiet divorce. Connie will seek her legal freedom in the courts of California. She feels there is little use in keeping up the pretense of marriage, when two people are manifestly unsuited to each other.

To say that the short duration of the Talmadge-Mackintosh ro-

HANDCUFFED EAGLE CO. HEAD FLEES WRATH OF WOMAN IN COURTHOUSE

Handcuffed to an armed guard, surrounded by others to protect him from the wrath of swindled investors, and his head bowed under the stinging epithets hurled by a woman who followed him through the courthouse, Samuel J. Gordon, accused of wrecking the Eagle Investment Association, went to the district attorney's office today and promised to make a complete statement on Wednesday.

"They've got you where they want you, you blasted crook!" shouted a middle-aged woman, one of a crowd of "stung" investors who watched him depart from the prosecutor's office as he headed back to his cell at Charles Street Jail.

She refused to be silenced. Tearing herself free from the restraining grasp of her daughter and others, she raced after Gordon and his guards and, still shouting epithets in a foreign tongue, dogged his footsteps until he disappeared through a door leading to the "pen."

"My daughters, my son and I lost all our savings and we're dead broke," she cried when she was forced to give up the chase. Tears streamed from her eyes as she was led away by her daughter.

GOVERNMENT LOSES IN FAMOUS CHEMICAL SUIT

Washington, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The government lost in the Supreme Court today in the Chemical Foundation case.

The decision wrote the final chapter of one of the largest and most spectacular of the government's post-war recovery suits. The highest court upheld the adverse decision rendered after trial in the District Court at Wilmington, Del.

Sale of the patents to the Chemical Foundation was ordered under the administration of President Wilson, while A. Mitchel Palmer was Alien Property Custodian. President Harding directed that suit be filed for cancellation of the transaction on the ground that the price obtained was inadequate, that the sale was made without authority and for other reasons.

THUGS BEAT MAN, BUT CAN'T OPEN $10,000 SAFE

Battered and beaten by three armed thugs who failed to break the safe where $10,000 reposed, Frank Wheeler, watchman at the big Standard Oil plant in East Boston, lay unconscious in the plant yard for five hours today.

The first report given out by the police was that the safe had been blown and $2,500 of Saturday's receipts stolen. The safe, however, resisted all efforts of the cracksman to pry it open.

The thugs struck Wheeler down felling and dazing him, but a second blow on the head as the thugs were leaving, left him unconscious until a driver reported for work almost half a dozen hours later.

Their intended loot constituted the Saturday "turn-in" of salesmen attached to the plant and office at No. 467 Chelsea street.

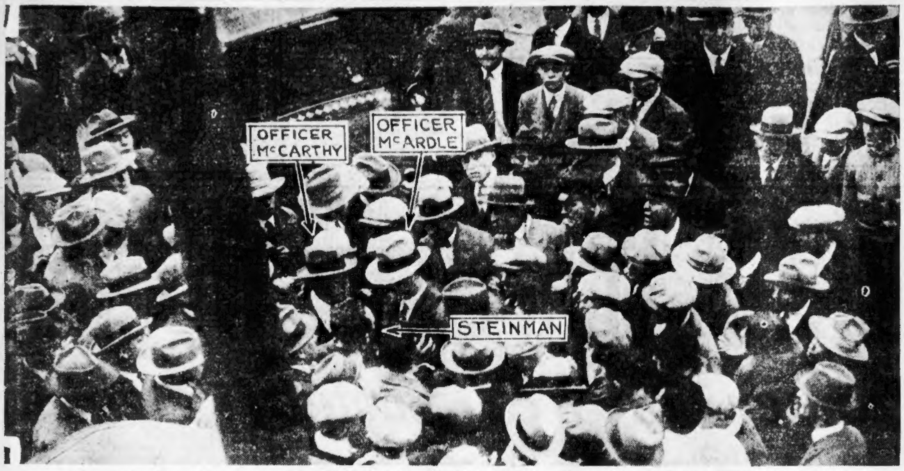
ANGRY EAGLE SHAREHOLDERS THREATEN OFFICERS OF ASSOCIATION AS RIOT REIGNS



POLICEMEN, OFF DUTY, RESCUE SECRETARY STEINMAN FROM ANGRY SHAREHOLDERS

Benjamin Steinman, secretary of the Eagle Investment Association, escaped serious injury at the hands of hundreds of shareholders when he was pushed into a taxicab by two policemen. They battled the angry mob as Steinman headed homeward. Sergeant John J. McArdle of Division 21 and Patrolman Michael McCarthy of Division 3 were the officers. They were near the Scenic Temple as Steinman escaped from the auditorium. They were in plain clothes and had difficulty in explaining their status.

SCENES SUCH AS THIS RESULTED IN A RIOT CALL

As Attorney Samuel Brenner, acting as chairman, opened the meeting of the 800 shareholders trouble started to brew, and in a few minutes the crowd was beyond control. It was as the attention of many was diverted to newspaper photographers snapping pictures that Steinman escaped from the hall.

GORDON'S OWN STORY OF HOW HE DROPPED $100,000 IN STOCK SPECULATIONS

Amplifying his story, given exclusively to the Boston Evening American, Samuel J. Gordon, "Uncle of the West End," and alleged wrecker of the Eagle Investment Association, tells today how he lost between $100,000 and $200,000 of the association's funds in stock market speculation.

In addition he pleads with the poor men and women—many of them widows and orphans—who have apparently lost life-savings through his operations, to be patient with him. He offers them in partial restitution, real estate holdings valued at $50,000 and he promises by co-operation with District Attorney O'Brien in the latter's investigation to clear up the association's almost impenetratable financial tangle, over which the District Attorney's auditors are now laboring.

The second instalment of the Gordon story follows:

By SAMUEL J. GORDON
As told to William R. Twomey.

I have learned that there was a riot at the meeting of the members of the Eagle Investment Company. It's too bad! I am in jail here under $100,000 bail which I have no hopes of obtaining, but if I had been there to tell my people a straight honest story and had an opportunity to tell them what to do and what I can do to help them, there would have been no trouble.

They call me crook and "gonnif" now, but for years I have been respected, trusted and admired by the Jewish people of this city.

Let me say to them now through the Boston Evening American: Samuel Gordon is the one man who can straighten out the books of the Eagle Investment Association.

Yes, it's true I borrowed thousands and thousands of dollars—all too much I borrowed, God knows! And it's true, in spite of all that's said, that I lost large amounts—plenty—in the stock market. Money that I borrowed from the association.

How I lost the money, with what firms and how much with each I will tell freely in order to meet the talk that I didn't lose the money—that I have it hidden away.

LOST LIKE 'LAMB'

I want to say now that many persons who have told the newspapers they lost money are really in debt to the association. I won't mention names as my intention is to help all and embarrass nobody beyond the trouble caused by my foolish borrowing money and losing it like a "lamb."

Since I came here to Charles street jail my head has bothered me. Headaches! Oh, such headaches!

But I feel better now. I can think better.

Now about my stock market business! It was gambling, I suppose, and I went into it head over heels. Like all of the poor lambs I made some profits at times—got some very large returns.

But when I lost! Thousands here and thousands there! At times during the past few years I have had as many as forty or fifty transactions at once on the books.

If they doubt that I lost and lost plenty, let them look over the books of the company and other houses which have been either ordered closed or went into bankruptcy in the last five or six years.

Let them find there the transactions under the names of Samuel J. Gordon, "B. Rich," "Z. Abels" and "I Jones." There they will find that I dropped about $30,000 in stock deals.

Aliases?

After the crash of —— company I quit the small brokers and did all my business with two of the largest and most reliable brokerage and banking houses in the city. I used my own name and other names with these houses.

I had two accounts in each company and so large were my transactions that in one month I had $68,000 in deals with one of these concerns representing tradings in more than 40 stocks and securities.

How much did I lose in my transactions through these two houses?

Plenty, young fellow, plenty.

One hundred thousand dollars? I don't know. Perhaps.

Would the sum of my losses cover what I owe the Eagle Association?

Yes and more.

That's enough about my stock losses.

I have always been a lender of money and in my accounts receivable, in time, I could raise about $38,000. Of course if a receiver is appointed for the Eagle Association, I would gladly assist in collecting this money for the benefit of the association members.

TELLS ASSETS

Now I am willing to turn over to the poor people who have money in the association: A three-story brick tenement house with nine tenements, located on Brackett street, Brighton, with the land it occupies I value this property at $33,000.

Also a dwelling house and stores located on Leverett street, Boston, valued at $18,000 or a total of $51,000 in all.

If I gain my freedom I am sure I will be able to make up the difference in what I owe the association. I am no fool. Even my enemies and those who don't know my whole story will not deny that I am able to make money honestly. All I want is a chance.

You can see that I did not run away from Boston and I will not go away if I am released on bail. If I done any wrong I am man enough not to run away as others did. To have run away before would have made people believe I was guilty of something.

I offer now to help Mr. O'Brien and Mr. Pride, his auditor, in examining and straightening out the books.

I want to warn the Eagle members that outsiders can't help them. Mr. O'Brien and his auditors can straighten out things and I will gladly help assist them.

My enemies wanted my bail set at $100,000 so that they would have free rein with the association books. But I am glad Mr. O'Brien stopped that.

In conclusion there is one matter I have forgotten—you see, I want to be free and frank.

When I was robbed in my place of business on Causeway street in July, 1922, I reported my total loss as $10,000 when it was really more than $30,000 in jewelry that was taken.

And I also forgot to state before that I lost about $6000 when a jewelry concern in Bromfield street in which I was interested failed.

I want to repeat my request that the Boston Evening American, which has printed my story fairly and truthfully, ask the people of Boston to think of me as a delinquent debtor, not a thief.

VISITS $100,000 HUSBAND IN JAIL

Mrs. Samuel J. Gordon, wife of the man who lent himself more than $100,000 entrusted to his care by the poor, is shown here with Attorney Jacobs after visiting her accused husband in Charles Street Jail. "He could have repaid if they had only waited," she said.

Contined from First Page.

more than $200,000 from the members of the Eagle Investment Association during his ten years as president, was taken to the courthouse from his cell on an order issued by District Attorney O'Brien.

IN COURT WEDNESDAY.

He will be taken there again Wednesday, and on the same day the Suffolk County Grand Jury will convene with the possibility of investigating the case. Then, also, his attorneys will ask for a sweeping reduction in the $100,000 bail demanded of him.

Equaling the wrath of the disappointed investors with her own anger, Mrs. Samuel J. Gordon, loyal to her accused husband, declared that she would personally horsewhip thre men whom she charges with being responsible for the ruin of both Gordon and the asociation.

She started out on a search of a bondsman able and willing to go bail for her husband that he might rejoin his family.

At the office of the District Attorney, Gordon, still handcuffed to Court Officer John Collins, was taken into the presence of Asistant District Attorney Timothy F. Callahan and Expert Accountant Edwin L. Pride.

With skepticism, District Attorney O'Brien had accepted Gordon's offer to aid in the audit of the entangled accounts of the association.

POSTPONES "STATEMENT."

Police Inspector James F. Egan, assigned to investigate a score of different angles of the case, was also present at the interview with the prisoner.

"Will you make a voluntary statement?" asked Callahan of Gordon.

"I will," replied Gordon.

Callahan warned him of his rights, told him that any statement must be considered as a purely voluntary declaration which could be used against him if the authorities choose.

"Now, go ahead with your story," instructed Callahan.

"I'll see you, Wednesday," said Gordon.

After a conference his designation of the time was accepted, as the prosecutors did not wish to force him to talk against his will.

As he stepped into the corridor his ears received the torrent of abuse heaped on him by the woman member of the association.

"She harranged him plenty," said Attorney Samuel Witkin, interpreting her words, which yere in Jewish. Wtiki ntried to calm her, but without effect. He is one of the attorneys handling the affairs of the association and trying to salvage something for the hundreds of members.

GRAND JURY SESSION.

Accountant Pride may present partial results of his audit to the Grand Jury on Wednesday, it was said at the courthouse, but no official statement regarding the Grand Jury action was made.

Mrs. Gordon denounced loudly the requirement of $100,000 bail which was set by Judge Michael Creed in Municipal Court at the arraignment of Gordon last Friday. A second hearing is now set, in the same court, for October 22.

Several court actions, including Grand Jury investigation, make the course of proceedings against the "West End uncle" uncertain. Among other things, the Superior Court will be called upon soon to act upon the request of Atorney Samuel Brenner and others for a series of injunctions.

Police search for possible concealed funds was continued, while the examination of the books of the Eagle Investment Association was going on at the district attorney's office. Scrutiny of the past history of Gordon and other officers of the association is also being made, it was said.

The rise from poverty to wealth of some of those connected with the association's financial operations is said to be attracting the attention of the investigators, as is the reported making of loans after the organization was forbidden by the State bank commissioner to do any business until its financial status was determined.

Mrs. Gordon Threatens to Horsewhip Somebody

My MRS. SAMUEL J. GORDON.
(As told to Walter C. Mahan of the Boston Evening American.)

I am going to get bail for my husband and buy a horsewhip for a certain individual. I am going to use the whip as soon as I meet him and also on two others. These three men started the whole thing and aroused the people against my husband.

These men did not lose a cent; in fact, they received their dividends. But they chose to incite others who did not know enough to get dividends, people who know nothing about finance and think they have lost their money.

Scores of Jewish people, who invest their money and know something about finance, have implicit faith in Mr. Gordon. They are not taking any part in any demonstrations against him or against any other officers of the Eagle Investment Association. Those who took part in any demonstrations are the unthinking ones, stirred up by these three men.

Of course he borrowed. Everybody who invested their money with him knew he was borrowing and if they had not been falsely alarmed everybody would have got every cent.

COUNT ALL TABS FOR KEENE, IS PLEA

A Keene sticker, no matter where it was placed on the ballot, should be counted, Corporation Counsel Silverman argued today before Supreme Court Justice Pierce in summing up in the recount battle with District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien for the Republican nomination for district attorney.

The decision of Judge Pierce will be reported to the full bench of the Supreme Court so a final decision can be made before the November election.

Silverman argued the mere act of the voter in putting a Keene sticker on a ballot indicated his intention to vote for Keene. If Keene's name was written in, whether it was spelled correctly or not, the vote should count, he said.

Referring to ballots with no "X" after the sticker, Silverman said a cross was directory and not mandatory. Silverman asked the court to lay down the doctrine that when a sticker is placed the vote should count whether it is followed by a cross or not.

Attorney Adlow for Keene charged "glaring inconsistencies" in the report of Auditor J. J. Ronan, whose report gave O'Brien the nomination by 568 votes.

Assistant District Attorney Alpert for O'Brien said a man must vote according to the statutes.

LOWELL DENIES HE'LL RESIGN AT HARVARD

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard today denied absolutely the report that he is to resign as head of the Cambridge institution.

Mr. Wadsworth not only denied the report, but at his instigation it was decided to issue an official denial from President Lowell's office later in the day.

Said Overseer Wadsworth: "I heard the report, but it only amused me. I had seen President Lowell within a week and he not only looked fitter than ever to conduct the destinies of Harvard, but discussed future plans for the institution without a hint of resigning."

AIMEE IN PLEA TO KU KLUX FOR AID

Los Angeles, Oct. 11. (I.N.S.)—Appealing to the Ku Klux Klan for support, Mrs. Aimee McPherson went to court today for the beginning of the third week for her unprecedented preliminary hearing. The evangelist, her mother and Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sellaff of San Francisco are charged with conspiring to produce false testimony.

Distributing printed cards to her congregation, which testify to the signer's unwavering faith in the integrity of the Angelus Temple pastor, Mrs. McPherson said: "How many of you are members of the Klan? Take several hundred cards with you to the meetings and get signatures."

Mention of the Klan as a potential source of strength confirmed earlier indications that the evangelist centres her defense about a charge of a "religious frame-up." When Deputy District Attorney Joe Ryan and Detective Captain Cline discovered that Kenneth Ormiston, former radio man employed at Mrs. McPherson's Angelus Temple, had spent ten days in a Carmel-by-the-Sea cottage with a woman resembling the evangelist at a time when she claimed to have been kidnaped, Mrs. McPherson answered the charge by declaring Ryan and Cline were "Catholics persecuting a Protestant minister."

Again, during the questioning of Miss Agnes Callahan, a prosecution witness who testified she had seen a man identified by her as Ormiston, enter a hotel room regularly rented by the evangelist, Defense Attorney Gilbert made an unsuccessful attempt to introduce into the record the fact that Miss Callahan is a Catholic.

Theft of a letter from police files which demanded $500,000 for the safe return of Aimee sent State detectives into a new phase of the investigation today.

The letter was sent from San Francisco May 24 to Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, mother of the evangelist.

WHEN MARIE WAS CROWN PRINCESS

EXTRA CAR TO CARRY MARIE'S WARDROBE

Paris, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Queen Marie of Rumania on arriving in Paris had the usual woman's complaint—"nothing to wear." Now she has too much.

All her original trunks were filled to capacity and others have been ordered to take the creations of famous modistes and milliners to the United States. So large is the queen's new wardrobe that another baggage car must be added to the train which will take her and her party to Cherbourg tomorrow to board the Leviathan for New York.

The royal party will make the journey to the seaboard in the same cars which brought them from Bucharest. At first it was thought the cars were too large for the tunnels on the way to Cherbourg, but measurements taken by railroad men show that they will be able to pass through.

The Queen is bending all her energies toward completing her arrangements to depart.

She visited the salon of the "French Palette" to see some of the modern paintings and other works of art there.

Many persons who recognized her commented on her striking beauty, regal bearing, friendly manner and attractive clothes.

The Queen spent so much time at the salon that she was unable to observe all she desired to see at the automobile show, which she visited later.

Queen Marie, while in the United States, will write exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

KILLS WIFE TO STOP 42 YEARS' NAGGING

Camden, N. J., Oct. 11.—A seventy-five-year-old husband, a great-grandfather, beat his wife to death with a heavy oak chair and a broom handle, to stop her nagging, according to a confession he is alleged to have made to the police.

The dead woman, Mary E. Wallace, was sixty-five years old. Her husband, Benjamin Wallace, is locked up on a charge of murder.

Calmly and dispasionately the old man, according to the police, made the confession.

"She nagged me the forty-two years we've been married and I got tired of it. Finally I got mad. I hit her with a chair twice. She nagged me if I didn't hang my clothes up. She nagged me for dropping cigar ashes on the floor and for taking too much sugar. Then she used to nag me for wearing dirty shoes and tracking up the floor and the carpets. She didn't like it when I wore my old clothes, but they were mine and why shouldn't I wear them?"

Benjamin and his wife lived alone. They have five grown children.

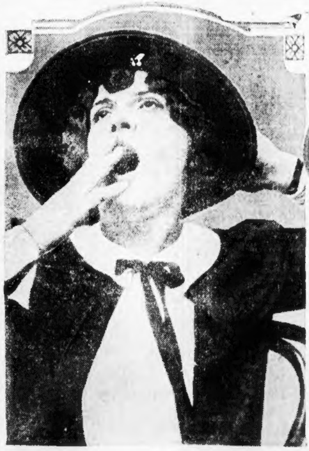
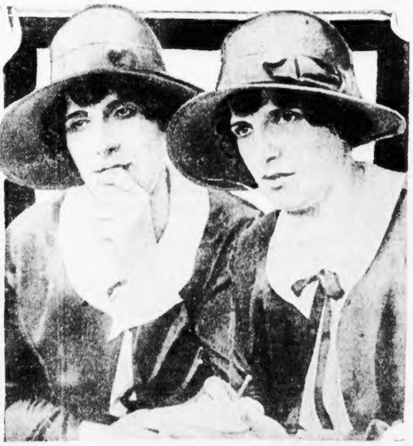
RESENTMENT AND WONDER

The picture shows the evangelist registering disbelief almost to the point of verbal protest. She also is shown in a quizzical mood as a witness testifies. She seems to doubt the story.



JUST ENNUI

The long court hearing at times is boresome to Annie Semple McPherson, evangelist, accused of conspiracy. This photo was snapped in one of those "sleepy moments."



DERISIVE AN D WORRIED

The accused evangelist at times finds a certain amount of amusement out of the testimony against her, as is shown in the picture. She is also shown paying close attention and carefully taking down notes as the witness tells his story.

¼ teaspoon salt.
¼ teaspoon paprika.
½ cup tomato soup.

Why Preserves Fail

When our canning, preserves, conserves and jellies fail, it is usually because we slipped up on the first prime step. We did not get the jars and glasses absolutely sterilized and clean. We were careless, and took it for granted that ordinary methods would remove those pesky germs.

But ordinary methods won't do. The slightest impurity will cause trouble, and hours of work go to naught.

To prevent this, use soda in the water when boiling out your jars, taking 2 teaspoonfuls of baking soda for each pint of water, and letting them boil thoroughly. This will discourage any hidden germ from drawing another breath of life, and make the jars sweet and clean.

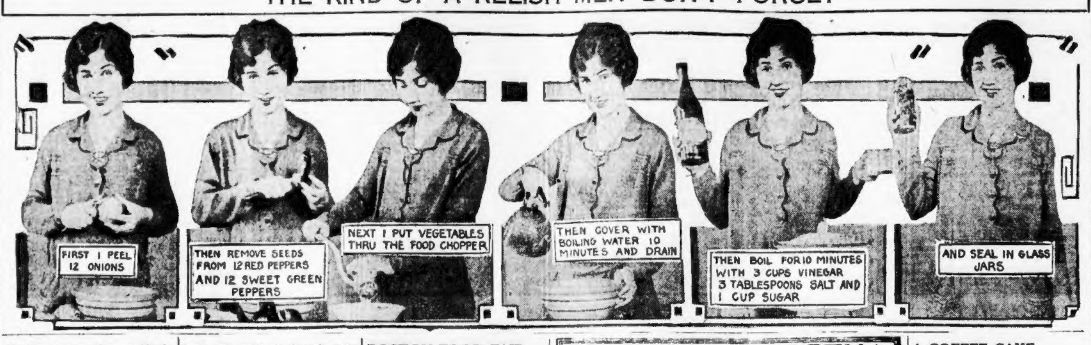
THE KIND OF A RELISH MEN DON'T FORGET



FIRST I PEEL 12 ONIONS

AND SEAL IN GLASS JARS

Shakespearian Pepper Hash

"I warrant there's vinegar and pepper in't," quoth the Shakespeare, the mighty bard of Avon. And if it's one of those relishes that cuts clear through the foggy dullness of poor appetite, and make the beans and fish hash taste, oh, so good, I'll warrant there's vinegar and pepper in it too.

If it's a relish in color, with spices blended just to perfection, and neither too tart or flat, I'll warrant the recipe of it originated somewhere in a village of Maine, or back in the by-roads of Massachusetts, for no concoctions of France or dishes of India ever surpassed the art of the New England housewife in her jars of pickles and preserves. And when one of these noble women gets out her spices and vinegar and starts in chopping peppers, green tomatoes, cucumbers and cauliflower, the bean pot pricks up its ears, the cold meat comes to attention, and all the men folks and children come as near as they dare teasing for a taste.

Here is a recipe which comes from one of our club members in Newton. It has won a place of fame among the "Relishes men don't forget," and being among the simplest to make should find its way to every preserve shelf. Originally it came from a little sea village on the Maine coast, where "men are men and women are cooks"—real cooks, by the way, cooks by inheritance, trained by experts of the rolling pin and mixing bowl, and mellowed through years of experience with their own and their neighbors' recipes.

It was one of the recipes judged worthy of a place in the cookbook made up by the best and most reliable ones in town, the cookbook "compiled by the Ladies of the Second Congregational Church," which bore as its motto, "Prove All Things. Hold Fast to That Which Is Good." A very good standard to follow, by the way. Between those friendly, homey pages, are directions on making Lucy Stone's Spiced Grapes, Evelyn Cousin's Lemon Sponge Pie, Sylvia Burke's Orange Cake, Grandma Dane's Cookies, and many others—chief of which is this particular Pepper Hash. Clip it out, and hold fast to that which is good.

Shakespearian Pepper Hash

12 onions.
12 sweet red peppers.
12 sweet green peppers.
3 cups vinegar.
3 tablespoons salt.
1 cup sugar
1 pair of 10c goggles.

Put on the goggles. It saves many a tear when ever an onion hovers near. Then put the red peppers and green peppers through the meat chopper with the onions. But be sure that not a seed goes in. Cover with boiling water for 10 minutes. Drain. Heat 3 cups of vinegar, 3 tablespoons salt and 1 cup of sugar. Then put into the mixture and cook for 10 minutes. Pack into sterilized jars or jelly glasses and seal.

BOSTON FOOD FAIR BETTER THAN EVER

The Boston Food Fair, which opens Monday, October 11, is the one time of the year when food manufacturers come into direct contact with the real buyers, the housewives. And this chance of meeting and talking over food problems with the ultimate users of their product gives as much satisfaction and profit to the manufacturers as the actual business they do there, or the amount of goods they sell.

As to the consumers, those who make up the thousands of visitors to the Fair each Fall, they have looked forward to it for years as a profitable, educational and delightful occasion. Housewives like to see new food articles and learn about the new and attractive methods of preparing and serving foods. It is like a huge school course in efficient home management, with skilled demonstrators to explain the most practical ways and means of every kitchen product.

This year the Exhibition Committee of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association has provided a well laid out floor plan, with attractive, spacious booths, wherein exhibits will be shown to the best advantage. The aisles are wide and roomy, to enable the crowds to move easily about with no undue congestion, and plenty of space for every one to see all the articles, and talk over all the details.

Music of high quality will be provided. Entertainments in the lecture hall and instruction through motion picture reels and illustrated lectures. Courteous attendants are going to be on duty day and evening to look out for the comfort of both guests and exhibitors.

This splendid fair has become so much a part of our yearly program, and a very vital part at that, that like most good things we have learned to take it for granted, and sometimes forget the source of our pleasure. It should be borne in mind that the Boston Food Fair is held under the auspices of the Boston Retail Grocers' Association, composed of five hundred members, retail merchants who are interested in discovering the good points and the poor points of their products, and what can be done to improve both the quality and the service. Only the housewife is fully equipped to give that information.

A COFFEE CAKE FOR PARTIES

Many times a request comes in for a recipe that will be different and delicious for afternoon parties or bridge luncheons.

Well, here it is—a filled coffee cake, spicy and good, which is equally appropriate to be served with coffee at an afternoon party, or as a dessert for a luncheon.

SPICED FILLED COFFEE CAKE

Measure, sift and measure again three cups of flour. Then sift four teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon mace or nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon and ¾ cup sugar. Work in ¼ cup butter with the finger tips. Add two unbeaten eggs and one cup of milk. Stir to a smooth dough, then turn into a well-oiled round cake pan and cover with a top mixture made as follows:

Cream ¼ cup butter, add ¾ cup brown sugar and three tablespoons of flour. Cream them all together until thoroughly blended. Add ½ teaspoon cinnamon and ⅛ teaspoon salt. Spread over the top of the coffee cake. Scatter over this ¾ cup almonds, which have been cut into small pieces. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. When cool split in half and spread a layer of sweetened whipped cream between the halves. Then cut into sections as if it were a pie.

KEROSENE is best to take out road oil on most fabrics as it evaporates and does not injure goods.

SPANISH BOILED FISH

For Spanish Boiled Fish, tie in cheese cloth a piece of halibut weighing 1½ pounds. Drop this into a kettle containing 6 cupfuls of boiling salted water and cook until the halibut is tender. Remove the fish and reserve the stock, which will be about 2½ cupfuls. Break the fish into rather small pieces. Then melt 2 tablespoons of butter in a sauce-pan and add one medium sized onion chopped fine, and ½ a seeded green pepper, also chopped fine. Cook until the onion is light brown, then add 2½ tablespoons of flour gradually, while stirring constantly. When it becomes a smooth paste, add the reserved fish stock, one tablespoon of milk and one tablespoon of Thousand Island Dressing. Simmer gently for 10 minutes, adding salt and pepper, if desired. Then add the fish, and serve on hot buttered toast.

A Valuable Secret for Laundering Silk Vests and Bloomers

The sheerest, most delicate lingerie such as expensive silk vests and bloomers will be restored to their original life, lustre and beauty with LINIT, the remarkable laundry starch that actually renews and refreshes limp, lifeless fabrics to the charm they had when first bought.

It may be hard to believe—but it's easy to prove—just try these simple directions:

After careful, gentle washing with a mild soap, rinse in tepid water until water is clear—then wring. Dip in LINIT Solution (directions follow). Wring Linited garments dry as possible. Shake, roll tight in a clean cloth, each one separately if large, or several small ones together. Let stand fifteen minutes and iron on the wrong side, coaxing out the laces to hold their shape.

To prepare LINIT for lingerie, dissolve a level teaspoonful of LINIT in half cup cold water, add to three and a half cups hot water—not boiling. This will LINIT a nightgown, step-in, and a brassiere. LINIT merges with the fabric, so little is needed, and it leaves the finish smooth and pliable. LINIT prevents soil from penetrating the fabric. Linited lingerie wears longer and perspiration stains are easily washed from Linited garments.

CONNIE TALMADGE WANTS DIVORCE, PLAIN STYLE

mance is a surprise to intimate friends of the pair is not exactly true.

Captain McIntosh is a man of the world and many years older than his young wife. Connie is as impulsive as she is kind hearted. The wooing of the attractive English soldier, who is not far from forty, was tempestous and sudden. He proposed marriage. She liked him and agreed to marry him without the thought usually given the serious estate of matrimony.

The wedding took place February 26 of last year at the palatial home of Jean St. Cyr, husband of Mrs. William Rhinelander Stewart, in San Mateo, and was a social event.

Those who were privileged to meet Captain Mackintosh found him likeable and charming. Connie is one of the most popular girls in Hollywood At first the bridegroom was taken into the select inner circle of film land because he had married the fun-loving Connie.

PREFERS SCREEN.

Late this Spring the captain took his bride to Europe to meet his people. His family belongs in Cholly Knickerbocker's column both by right of birth and social prestige. There was even talk that the blone Connie would forsake the screen and settle down to a life of uneventful domesticity.

Then the Mackintoshes returned to this country and although Connie said she loved England and that she had never met so many delightful people she was eager to return to her career as a screen actress.

Joseph Schenck, head of United Artist, and the husband of Norma Talmadge, is her advisor. He said when she talked of retiring from the screen if it meant her happiness he was willing. But he and all her friends knew that a girl who had made a name for herself and climbed the top rung of the ladder fa would not be willing to throw it away without some thought.

Miss Talmadge had been married before. Her first husband was John Pagliogli, an importer. They were divorced after a short time. She has been in the films since she was a slip of a girl in Brooklyn. Mr. Schenck told me when it was finally decided that she would seek her freedom that Connie's contentment was his chief concern. He says her retirement would have been a financial loss at this time but he wanted her to do the thing that pleased her.

There will be no ugly scandal Connie will continue to live with her mother in Hollywood and Captain Mackintosh will sail for home very shortly.

"We are the best of friends," said Connie. "I had luncheon with him at the Colony Club two days before I left New York. I would not say anything to hurt him, for he is one of the finest gentlemen I have ever met. But it would be selfish for me to spoil his life.

"He may meet someone else, and there is no necessity of ruining his happiness and my own. We are simply unsuited. We like different things. He has his ideas and I have mine."

Captain Mackintosh is, of course, much older than Connie. He has always looked upon her as a child. Although he says that he loves her and always will, he is eager to do everything for her happiness and that seems to mean absolute freedom from all marriage ties. Connie has been much agitated over the report that she was seeking her freedom to marry some one else.

WILL NOT REMARRY.

"I have been married twice, and it is enough," she said. "I shall not marry again. Why should I? I have my screen work, and as soon as I finish my contract with First National I shall begin work for United Artists."

My every thought now is to make a good picture in "Collette' which was written for me by Hans Kraely I have a good time and I enjoy dancing, but as for marrying any of the men with whom I go dancing, that is preposterous.

"Don't you think it is unfair," asked Constance, "just because I want to be on the level and above board, and just because Captain Mackintosh and I have decided our marriage was not a success, for people to try and start a scandal? I am talking to you because I feel you understand my viewpoint."

vere was making his rounds when he surprised the thugs.

As he went through the shadowed yard the towering hulks of the many tanks loomed blackly above him but nothing seemed amiss as he unlocked the door of the office went in, punched the watchman's clock and started out again.

When he stepped over the sill, three men sprang out of the darkness. Two placed revolvers at his head, but the third, seizing up a wrench from the ground, brought it down on Wheeler's skull. He dropped, dazed.

Frank McKinney, truck driver, reporting for work, found the watchman later and rushed him to the East Boston Relief Hospital.

KAISER FEARED TO USE NAVY, CHARGES VON TIRPITZ

By GRAND-ADMIRAL ALFRED VON TIRPITZ

(Copyright, 1926, by Universal Service. Reproduction, even in part, strictly prohibited.)

Universal Service presents herewith exclusively the fourth installment of the extraordinary book which Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz soon will publish in Germany under the title, "German Policy of Impotence in the War."

FROM MY WAR DIARY

The Kaiser continually curtailed the power of the commander-in-chief of the German navy during the war. "After each skirmish," wrote one admiral to another, "His Majesty is greatly worried lest the fleet might run into superior enemy forces. In his anxiety to save the fleet he wants Admiral von Ingenohl to send telegraphic requests for imperial approval of any large-scale naval action the commander-in-chief might wish to undertake."

Tirpitz's grievance against the Kaiser, Bethmann-Hollweg, Admiral von Pohl and others is that they wanted considerably more than 50 per cent. safety in any naval action they might have been willing to take the responsibility for.

On September 2, 1914, the Grand Admiral received a telegram from Under-Secretary of State Zimmermann, which read:

"The American ambassador just conveyed to me 'the desire of the Right Honorable Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty of Great Britain, to inform His Excellency, Gross-Admiral Von Tirpitz, that his son is both safe and unwounded.'"

IGNORED BY KAISER

Throughout the book runs, like a red thread, Von Tirpitz's warning that England was Germany's most powerful enemy and that the German navy must attack that enemy at all costs—the sooner the better.

In the second month of the World War the Grand Admiral wrote to Prince Henry, the Kaiser's brother, prophetic words:

"Not only the future of Germany but also that of house of Hohenzollern depends upon this war and its outcome."

The Kaiser ignored his warnings.

Again and again he told the Emperor that inactivity of the German fleet would undermine its fighting spirit and morale. This prophecy found grim fulfilment in the fact that mutinies upon German warships were the first signal later for the revolution of 1918, which overthrew the Hohenzollern throne and made Germany a republic. Again and again Von Tirpitz had urged attack; all his pleas fell upon deaf ears.

With all his bitter antagonism against England Tirpitz finds words of praise for the sterling qualities of the British character. "The bulldog-like energy with which England carries on the war against us impresses me," he write in a letter to Admiral von Capelle.

Albert Ballin, head of the Hamburg-American Line, wrote to Tirpitz a few weeks after the war began:

"I am convinced that—always provided that we succeed in beat-

FISHING BOATS IN TITLE RACE

a length to the fort, footing fast in the spanking northwest breeze.

Official times for crossing the starting line were given as—Columbia, 10:00:47, and Henry Ford, 10:00:49.

Low-lying, trig and trim and with full sail spread, the schooners churned over the forty-mile course while thousands watched the race.

It was an ocean course destined to return either the schooner Henry Ford or the schooner Columbia the winner for the first day of three in which races will be run.

"Best two out of three" in the races today, tomorrow and Wednesday will decide the champion for another year at least, and will give greatest glory to either Captain Morrissey at the wheel of the Ford or Captain Ben Pine, who pushes the Columbia.

THOUSANDS SEE RACE.

All Gloucester and thousands not from Gloucester had moved out to the open sea for the occasion, and a roar went up from the craft, big and little, lining the ocean course that hauls and tacks for forty miles, beginning and ending a mile and a half off Eastern Point.

Coated and bundled-up against the nip of the raw salt air and the chill of the northwest breeze, the watchers, for the most part, were on excursion boats and small craft of all description.

Other watchers lined the shore at vantage points, although a keen eyesight was needed to follow the match closely, and strong glasses were most beneficial.

Footing away from the starting mark in the rolling sea, the contesting schooners—real fishermen and hampered by no rules of conduct, procedure or what the fishermen call "la-de-da yachting"—headed for Thatcher's Point, five miles distant.

From Thatcher's, a triangle was plotted in the course, ten miles northwest on one angle around a buoy on a ten-mile beat to the southeast, and again around a buoy for a ten-mile southwest haul.

This brought the fast-footing craft back to Thatcher's from where they laid their bowsprits in an eager line for East Point, five miles away, and the finish.

It was a day perfect for such a race. Overhead, as the starting gun boomed out, the blue sky was broken by scudding clouds, gray and foreboding, but not likely, according to the old salts, to let down any rain or in otherwise take the edge off the party.

WINS RACE TO DYING MOTHER

Concord, N. H., Oct. 11.—Frank Nutting of No. 856 Beacon street, Boston, outstripped death in his race to this city to see his mother, Mrs. Almon Nutting of Beverly, victim of an automobile accident.

She is dying at the Margaret Pillsbury Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Almon Nutting left Beverly Saturday to visit friends here. It was in Pembroke they figured in an auto accident. The father suffered only minor injuries, but Mrs. Nutting sustained a possible fracture of the skull.

Word was sent to their son in Boston and he started immediately on his race against death.

When he reached the hospital the physicians feared his mother would not be able to recognize him, but she knew him immediately.

Daugherty and Miller are charged with conspiracy, for bribes, to permit release of $7,000,000 war-impounded assets in 1921.

After five weeks in court, the case went to the jury at 9:45 Friday night. Saturday, inability to agree was reported but Judge Mack refused to discharge.

Yesterday Juror Henry Van Ost, believed to be a hold-out for acquittal, complained to the judge that insulting language was being used in the juryroom and that duress was being used to make him "lay down."

Juror Murray White, whose slight illness caused concern to the prosecution, which would have to try the case over if a talesman had to withdraw, seemed in better health today.

With the Glenwood Robertshaw Oven Heat Control this oven maintained 300 degrees for 47½ hours at a cost of less than a cent an hour.

Think of keeping an oven going for two days and nights at less than the cost of burning ordinary incandescent light!

The reason is that the insulated walls of this oven hold the heat inside, so that every mite of gas is utilized for cooking instead of heating up the kitchen.

As a result, you can count on absolutely even heat in any part of this oven—front or back, top or bottom.

KLAN STRESSES SUPREMACY OF WHITES

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 11.—This is the third chapter of Court Asher's expose of "The Ku Klux Klan in Indiana." Asher is a former King Kleague of the Ku Klux Klan, right-hand man of D. C. Stephenson and still friendly. In the first chapter he told how Stephenson dominated Indiana and aspired to control the President of the United States. The second told of Stephenson's rule of the judicial machinery. Today he offers more startling revelations.

By COURT ASHER

(Copyright, 1926, by the Boston Evening American Publishing Co.)

"I do not believe that any man who takes the oath of membership in the Ku Klux Klan is qualified to be a good United States attorney."

That, you will remember, was the statement made by Federal Judge Anderson in connection with his demand that Wilbur Ryman, assistant United States district attorney, be "let out." Perhaps it will be of interest to know just what the "oath of allegiance" of the Klan contains.

An exact copy of the oath follows:

The Iron-Clad Oath

"I, ——, in the presence of God and man, most solemnly pledge, promise and swear unconditionally that I will faithfully obey the constitution and laws and will willingly conform to all regulations, usages and requirements of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan which do now exist or which may hereafter be enacted, and will render at all times loyal respect and steadfast support to the imperial authority of the same and heartily heed all official mandates, decrees, edicts, rulings and instructions of the imperial wizard thereof.

"I most sacredly vow and most positively swear that I will never yield to bribe, flattery, threats, passion, punishment, persecution, persuasion nor any enticements whatever coming from or offered by any person or persons, male or female, for the purpose of obtaining from me a secret or secret information of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

The candidate then waits until the Exalted Cyclops and his Klan have decided whether to admit him to membership. If the decision is in the affirmative, he is taken into the Klavern and the oath continues:

"I ——, before God and in the presence of these mysterious Klansmen, on my sacred honor, do most solemnly and sincerely pledge, promise and swear that I will diligently guard and faithfully foster every interest of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and will maintain its social caste and dignity.

Heed Klansman's Call

"I swear that I will most strenuously discourage selfishness and selfish political ambition on the part of myself or any Klansman.

"I swear that I will never allow personal friendship, blood or family relationship, nor personal, political or professional prejudice, malice nor ill will to influence me in casting my vote for the election or rejection for any applicant for membership in this order. God being my helper. Amen.

"I swear that I will at any time without hesitating, go to the assistance or rescue of a Klansman in any way at his call. I will answer.

"I swear that I will keep, secure to myself the secret of a Klansman when the same is committed to me in the sacred bond of Klansmanship, the crime of violating this sacred oath, treason against the United States of America, rape and malicious murder alone excepted.

"I most solemnly assert and affirm that to the Government of the United States of America, and any State thereof of which I may become a resident, I sacredly swear an unqualified allegiance above any other and every kind of Government in the whole world.

"I swear that I will most zealously and valiantly shield and preserve by any and all justifiable means and methods the sacred constitutional rights and privileges of free public schools, free speech, free press, separation of Church and State, liberty, white supremacy, just laws, and the pursuit of happiness against any encroachment of any nature by any person or persons, political party or parties, religious sect or people, native, naturalized or foreign of any race, color, creed, lineage or tongue, whatsoever."

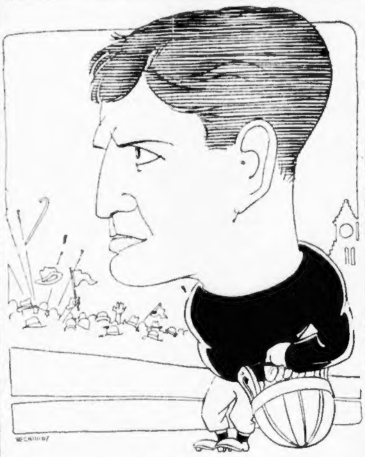
NEW GLORY FOR THIS HUSKY FILMSTER



RICHARD DIX

In "The Quarterback" at the Metropolitan, he piles up the points for those "bigger and better" movies.

2 ARRESTED IN DANISH ARMY MUTINY PLOT

Copenhagen, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Two former Danish army officers have been taken into custody, charged with inciting army officers to mutiny in connection with unrest among the farmers of Schleswig. Rumors were current of a purposed coup d'etat because of alleged unjust and ruinous taxation imposed by the Socialist government while agricultural conditions are depressed.

In Schleswig, taken from Germany and incorporated into Denmark by a plebescite in 1920, a mass meeting was called to appeal to the League of Nations. The government ordered out strong forces of police, but their services were not required.

New Method Removes Wrinkles in 15 Minutes

A veritable wonder-worker for wrinkled and flabby faces is a simple, harmless application made by mixing a spoonful of powdered tarkroot with a spoonful of lemon juice. Not only does it quickly smooth out the wrinkles and age lines—before one's very eyes—but it has a stimulating influence upon the weakened and relaxed underlying tissues. The mixture is spread over the face with the fingertips, and in less than fifteen minutes the mirror shows that a most marvelous transformation has taken place. When the substance is washed off the average face actually looks ten or fifteen years younger.

The results are far better than those obtainable from the most expert massaging—and the cost is less than three cents a treatment! Powdered tarkroot can be obtained from any druggist.

DIX STARS AS QUARTERBACK

Like the season's styles in frocks and footwear, the movie modes are cued from the calendar. To prove it, "The Quarterback" features football and, as seen at the Metropolitan, is the very latest thing in Fall "fillums."

Better than that, it is the best picture Richard Dix has ever had—at least since "The Vanishing American"—and it provides the best football game ever seen on the screen. It takes cameracraft of a high order to accomplish that, but Director Fred Newmeyer is dealing in nothing else these days.

He sinks his camera into the ground and "shoots" upward for the scrimmage plays, so that the grimly charging backfield players seem bent on tearing into the audience. The end runs are photographed by means of cameras on the move and the ball is constantly followed, no matter what the play.

The boys play a hard and fast game all the way through and the best that can be said for the action is that it looks more like the real thing than the real thing itself. Surely, no spectator of this greatest of collegiate sports ever saw a real game as graphically as Newmeyer sees it. You can't get it this way from the stands.

On the stage, "The Giant Piano," the joint presentation of John Murray Anderson and Nathaniel Finston, is capital entertainment and offers a remarkable diversity of talent. Van and Hyman contribute novelty in the way of music, and the orchestra and the organ complete an unusually excellent bill.

MARVENGA RETURNS FOR 'STUDENT PRINCE'

Boston saw Ilse Marvenga only a part of the nineteen weeks' time "The Student Prince" played at the Shubert Theatre last season. She was then called to England to play "Kathie" in the London company of this piece. Miss Marvenga is coming back with "The Student Prince" when the play opens its engagement at the Majestic, tonight. Ilse Marvenga is a European songstress and the critics abroad call her "a miniature Jeritza." She created the title role in the European production of "Caroline," Mitzi in "Blossom Time" and was the choice of Leo Blech and Eugene D'Albert, European composers, for prima donna rolls in their grand operas. She was brought to America by McLellan, the English impressario, and was immediately engaged by the Shuberts for "The Student Prince."

FIND WATCHMAN'S BODY WITH BULLET IN CHEST

Providence, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The body of Oscar W. Swope, forty-one, night watchman of the Red Bridge plant of the Standard Oil Company of New York at East Providence, was found in the vestibule of the building with a bullet wound in the right chest.

Medical Examiner Charles B. O'Rourke said the man had been dead about ten hours.

Swope's gun, with four empty chambers, was found beside his body, while his flash light and car were found in the yard seventy-five feet away. No attempt had been made to rob the safe in the office building.

Canada Deports 123

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The immigration authorities today reported 123 Italians who some weeks ago were secretly landed from the steamer Dori at Mill Cove, N. S., in contravention of the immigration laws.

'RED' GRANGE IS FINE IN FILM 'ONE MINUTE'

One of the biggest hits of the current films—and one of the biggest surprises—is the picture debut of the gridiron star, Red Grange.

In "One Minute to Play," showing now at the Fenway and the Olympia, the "Galloping Ghost" becomes a first rate filmster as easily as he made his letter at Illinois.

In the parlance of the theatre, lay stars generally "flop" when required to look "cute" for the camera, but Red and his picture is a surprise party all around. He looks well in fancy togs, can stack up with any of the regular film heroes in the matter of muscular proportions—and how he can play football!

Though there is plenty of college "atmosphere" and a carefully built-in romance with Mary McAllister as a fair co-ed, the "big game" is, of course, the main attraction. And Director Sam Wood is the real hero of it. He skillfully works up the suspense before the whistle blows by depicting the student revels of the "night before." A huge bonfire lights the weird antics and the fervor of the "team" and the cheering undergraduates seems absolutely authentic.

The game itself is a triumph of realism. Moving cameras follow Grange as he weaves, ducks and dodges on an end run in the manner that made him famous; other cameras "shoot" downward on the plunging backs, while the scrimmages were taken at such close range that it seems a miracle the camera was not demolished.

'TAKE IT FROM ME' FINE FARCE

"Take It From Me," now showing at the New Boston, is one of Reginald Denny's funniest pictures.

Star of many excellent film farces, he is at his best in this light and frothy comedy, and dashes through it with an air of serious abandon

Ben Hendricks, Jr., and Lee Moran, as the blundering floor walkers of Denny's department store, gives the comedian capable support and are hilariously amusing to the audience.

Blanche Mehaffey graces the proceedings as the feminine lead with a large stock of personality and a pleasant Irish smile.

On the stage, the vaudeville bill is headed by Ray's Bohemians, a musical comedy act, and the O'Neil Brothers, two boys from Brookline, who dispense bright tunes and know how to put them over.

HOUSE IS BURNED AFTER EXPLOSION

Worcester, Oct. 11.—Starting with an explosion that awakened the neighborhood, fire today destroyed the house and store of Samuel Hashem at No. 1006 West Boylston street, and threatened to spread to a supply of gasoline stored in the yard.

Firemen, responding to an alarm sounded by Harry McLaughlin, a neighbor, searched the blazing house in the belief that Hashem and others were inside, but the family was away at the time.

Loss was estimated at $7,000. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated furnace.

'INTELLECTUAL BOOTLEG' USURPS STUDENT ROLE

Cleveland, O., Oct. 11.—(I.N.S.)—Declaring the student honor system had "gone to pot" through the demoralizing effect of "intellectual bootleggers" and others, President Robert E. Vinson of Western Reserve University today suspended student government from the campus and placed control with the trustees.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Useless Club to Open Activities with Ball Night of November 5

SIGNS A-PLENTY ARE WITH US THAT the Winter's social season is soon to be on with a rush. Useless Club members and their friends in Boston and other fashionable bailiwicks hail, with great expectations of jollity, announcement that their Autumn ball is set for November 5.

USELESS CLUB AFFAIRS signal a gathering of the clans from near and far, for the young men who (following war service in the late conflict) banded themselves together in this unique organization, have friends galore who flock to all such festivities.

WHEN BOSTON IS the festal scene New Yorkers come over, and when the Big City or thereabouts figure as the locale there's a general exodus that way. Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings Barr of New York and Long Island are Useless Club faithfuls who journey wherever the Club calls.

FEMININE GUESTS include some of the more prominent girls of the year, and a sprinkling of popular Gotham and Washington maids. Girls of assured belldom, whose debut Winters are two or three seasons behind them, are honored by Useless Club invitations. Altogether it's a choice aggregation.

MRS. HOWLAND SEABURY, the former Rosamond Johnson, who is to be matron of honor for the Wells-Van Rennselaer wedding at Osterville Saturday, goes down soon to that pretty little Cape Cod town to join the wedding party.

PRE-NUPTIAL festivities commencing in New York with a dinner and dance given by the bridegroom's mother, continue in Osterville with Mr. and Mrs. T. Tileston Wells, parents of the bride-elect, as hosts.

MARY LOUISE BUTTERFIELD
She entertains at luncheon for the prospective bride, Miss Gretchen Brown. Miss Butterfield is to be a bridesmaid at the Brown-Chaplin ceremonial on Saturday.

A HANDSOME GIRL of poise and presence, Miss Wells should be a distinctly individual bride. The ceremony itself is in the oratory of the Manor House, St. Mary's Island, the residence of the Rev. and Mrs. Andrew Chalmers Wilson, godparents of Miss Wells.

FOLLOWING the lead of other philanthropically inclined groups, the Women's Overseas Service League turns its attention to a [illegible] money-getter, the theatrical benefit no less, to secure a generous fund for its beneficent works.

THIS ORGANIZATION of women who served with the Allies during the recent world conflagration plans a Winter of intensive good works, having to do principally with veterans hospitals, service clubs and such.

MISS HOPE GRAY of Mount Vernon place, second in command of Overseas League destinies, secures for its meetings that rambling, high ceiled, home of the Architectural Club on the further slope of Beacon Hill. A cavernous fireplace makes splendid centre for after-supper entertainment.

HEART DISEASE ON JUMP

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 11 (A.P.)—The decrease in deaths from tuberculosis in the last decade has been accompanied by a marked increase in mortality rates for heart disease, Dr. Don M. Griswold of the University of Iowa said today before the American Public Health Association.

He said that when information on heart disease is as well disseminated as information on tuberculosis, the problem of heart disease will be well on the way toward solution.

Dr. Griswold said investigators were in the "fact finding" period regarding heart disease and emphasized the necessity of State and municipal health departments putting pressure on research work to determine the cause, course and results of diseases of the heart. When these facts are known health officials should carry on an educational program for the lengthening of life, he said.

Dr. Robert M. Woodbury of the Institute of Economics, Washington told delegates America can accumulate enormous savings by eliminating preventable disease and ill health.

PRIZE WINNER READY FOR TRIP TO EUROPE

Beatrice R. Spencer, winner of the first prize in the Greater Movie Season Contest, recently conducted by The Boston Evening American, knows now that she has not been dreaming.

The first of the local awards was a 70-day Mediterranean tour, for two persons, on the steamship Orca of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company.

At her home on Devon street in the Roxbury district, Miss Spencer today exhibited the invitation to "get ready" which she had just received from Sanderson & Son, Inc., the American agents of the Royal Mail.

BOSTON STORE OPENS AS FIRST OF CHAIN

Another indication of business prosperity in Boston was manifest with the opening of the first of six projected stores which will deal exclusively in women's shoes. The new chain will sell the output of its own factory directly to consumers.

The head of the new industry is Burt Weiss, who for the past 20 years has been connected with the wholesale and retail shoe trade in Boston and New York. The store is situated at No. 85 Summer street. Five other stores will be added in Boston and eventually new stores will be opened in larger cities throughout New England.

COOLIDGE LAUDS LEGION AT BIG CONVENTION

Vets Throng Into Philadelphia in Colorful Ranks for Annual Meeting

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (A.P.)—Legionaires began their great offensive against Philadephia today as the eighth annual convention of the American Legion got under way.

The shock troops from every State overran the city and, as the official communique might phrase it, the Philadelphia sector was captured without casualty.

Amid the blare of bugles, the thumping of drums and the shouts of greeting by former comrades who lined the streets, thousands of delegates marched through the city from the railroad stations and steamship docks to their headquarters in the Atlantic building.

Uniforms of every hue and color dotted the throng. Women, wearing brilliant red overseas caps and flowing capes, mingled in the hosts of khaki, blue, gray and orange colored uniforms. Headquarters of the various State delegates were opened in the hotels and the welcome sign hung on the doors.

PRAISE FOR COOLIDGE.

A message from President Coolidge, in which he praised the Legion's effort to arouse the dormant voters of the country to a sense of citizenship duty, was read today as the convention opened. It was addressed to National Commander John R. McQuigg and read:

"It is a real pleasure each year to testify to my high regard for the American Legion, and to my great appreciation of the services which were rendered to our country by its members.

"The past tense does not adequately express my feelings. For truly patriotic citizens the duties of peace are as vital as those of war. In a sense they are more so. Shirkers in peacetime are to be condemned as severely as slackers during a war.

FOR "REAL AMERICANISM."

"I am particularly gratified to know that you are throwing the splendid resources of your organization into the important work of arousing our citizens to take part in elections. Too much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of getting out the vote."

The Legion intends to foster and perpetuate real Americanism, as it intends to strive for the maintenance of law and order, said Wilder Metcalf, chairman of the National Finance Committee of the Legion, addressing the organization.

"Today our country is ashamed of the growing disregard of law," he added. "Too many persons dwell in or land when have no intention or desire to become Americans. We know full well that not all true Americans are born in America. We rejoice and take courage because we know that millions of our foreign-born citizens have America born in them."

20 STATES IN BIG COTTON SHOW

Twenty States will be represented by more than 400 cotton growers who meet Wednesday at the Copley-Plaza for a two-day convention of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

At a style show in the evening the latest in cotton fabrics will be exhibited. New colors in hosiery, thirty-eight dresses of various types, and novelties in texture and pattern will be some of the features of the show.

The public will be able to see the style show on Thursday, Friday and Saturday afternoons, when the dresses will be worn by mannequins at Jordan-Marsh & Co.

A banquet Thursday evening will bring the convention to a close. The principal speakers will be Major-General John F. O'Ryan, new head of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., and war hero, and Edwin Farnham Greene, president of Lockwood, Greene & Co.

Election of officers, Thursday afternoon, will be followed by an open air forum and presentation of the report of the resolutions committee.

M'MILLAN'S CONDITION IS MUCH IMPROVED

Rockland, Me., Oct. 11.—(A.P.)—The condition of Lieut. Commander Donald B. MacMillan, the Arctic explorer, who was taken to Knox county general hospital with a neck infection, was reported today as much improved.

Dr. Neil A. Fogg, nephew of the explorer, said that an operation will be unnecessary.

Dearest Anne:

More festivities, more wedding plans, more news about town. "Such a much" I hardly know where to begin. Perhaps the best place is where I began this morning, because it is the normal start for any woman whose days are full of work, and evenings full of social events. And besides it entirely disproves that pessimistic old statement that "There is nothing new under the sun."

There Certainly Is,

For I have found it at Filene's. Contouration Treatments. Ever heard of them? Well, if you go up into the balcony beauty parlors, you will hear of nothing else, because it has taken the place by storm. Every one of the store staff, with all their relatives combined, are interested in this new wonder working treatment.

But to go back a little. I was tired, dull and worn, with too many busy days and late hours behind me, and far too much to do, stretching ahead. And I looked it. So I went to Filene's and asked for a massage which would put me right with the world. Some good friend there introduced me to this Contouration Treatment and it sounded so sensible that I sat right down and yielded to its delicate touch.

Well, dear, it was the nearest to heavenly pastures we will ever come to on this earth. The most delightful soft warm roller treatment, touching the skin as gently as the lightest finger tips, working an emulsion into the pores, which helps remove unhealthy fatty tissue and the poisons under the surface. Then the operator patted my skin quite dry, applied a Liquid Bandage and left me to relax for 15 minutes. Cold towels removed this, and by the time I was groomed to the last dab of powder, I felt like a garden after the first April shower.

But this isn't half the story and doesn't begin to tell what it does to wrinkles, double chins, sagging muscles and those unwelcome tissues of fat. I can only hint about that, and suggest that you run up into Filene's balcony, and find out the rest for yourself.

Somebody's Watching

Around our house. Somebody suspects that the goblins and witches will be snoopin' round some day soon. And Somebody knows he is going to have one glorious time when they do.

Because he saw a package come from Ward's, and at this time of year, he knows it means a Halloween party.

I should say it did. And you never saw such a variety of things in your life as I found at the counter down there at 57 Franklin Street. Great Grewsome Cats, weird witches, fluttering bats, howling owls, skinny skeletons, and all the rest of the fearful folk that haunt our homes on that queer night. There are jolly little pumpkins with open doors which invite you to the party. And black and orange candle shades to give that spooky light. Nut cups, place cards, tally cards, paper napkins, candy boxes, favors, bonbons, wondrous caps and aprons—box after box of concentrated fun and laughter. The largest selection in town, I reckon, and surely the best for originality and novelty.

As you know, when I give a party, I do like to have it the best party of its kind in the city. I love the unique twists and turns, the splashing colors, the quaint designs and shapes of the things Ward's discovers. Not a bit more expensive than the more ordinary stock, but so different.

From Pumpkins To Hosiery

Seems a far cry, but no farther than Franklin Street to Washington, and across to Talbot's, then in the big open doors to the "Holeproof" counters, as straight as a crow flies once he has learned the right direction.

But with only a fleeting glimpse today at the lustrous gleaming lengths of women's hosiery, and a sigh of desire for another pair of silken luxury, for John's budget demands his Fall supply, and we must shop for socks.

However, that's a pleasure, not a hardship, for the $1.00 silk socks are perfection themselves.

"Holeproof," of course, and the finest quality pure silk, with the lisle feet and top, featuring the famous "Ex-Toe" which guarantees three times the wear of ordinary makes. It is this sock which has made silk hosiery an every day necessity for men, rather than a full-dress luxury, for with the "Ex-Toe" reinforcement, a man can indulge in the finest quality made, and yet know that it gives the truest economy in wear and long service.

Then there are the socks at 75c a pair, a fine value indeed, in silk with the lisle feet and top, and the lisle at 50c a pair, or the cotton for 35c, three pair for $1.00. No matter what grade or quality you choose, you get one hundred per cent. satisfaction, if you make it a habit to go to Talbot's, 395 Washington Street.

Miss Elizabeth Manning is glad to be home again. She has been abroad with her father, Bishop Manning, of New York, during the last two months. But the sunlight on New York is the most welcome sight of all.

Which Reminds Me

That I must run in to R. H. White's this afternoon for another tube of Velouderma.

Between pottering among the last flowers and putting up preserves, my hands would look like a grubby chimney sweep, if it weren't for Velouderma (velvet skin).

That little wonder-working tube keeps them fresh and soft, not a stain or a crack; not a callous or a wrinkle; but as white and fine as if "I sat on a cushion and sewed a fine seam" all through the day.

Velouderma (velvet skin) is a delicate transparent jelly, delightfully scented with rose or violet. When gently worked into the pores of the face or hands, it softens, whitens, and puts them in exquisite condition. It keeps a baby's tender flesh free from chafing and takes the irritation out of a man's morning shave. Only 25c, a tube—a little price—for one of the most effective and popular preparations in the cosmetic departments today.

Jack Frost Is Creeping

Down the valleys. Halloween's just round the corner and our gardens are going to sleep.

Lest you be sad to see the flowers go, I went up to Penn's, the Florist, at 124 Tremont Street, and ordered a box of bright everlastings to be sent you.

A cluster of flame-colored Japanese Lanterns, delightful sunset freaks of nature, combined with stalks of Old Honesty, those silvery transparent paper thin leaves from England, and tall sprays of Sea Barley, tinted with silver, green and gold, set off by twigs of our dear familiar Bittersweet. And now you'll have glorious color to brighten some dull corner of your home for months to come.

They have captured the sunlight in there at Penn's. Sunlight with fragrance and the eternal spring of growing things. A bridal bouquet of pure gold, of lovely Pernet roses, with tiny, tawny roses tumbling down from it. Big yellow chrysanthemums with flaming Autumn leaves for church decorations and baskets of orange Madame Ireux roses, callendula and yellow daisies for the home. A gorgeous blending of color—a glorious sendoff for two happy young people just starting on their life together. What a privilege to have Penn, with his unerring instinct for decoration, behind one on such an occasion.

Football Season

Is on. And regular football weather, too; now hot, now cold, with thousands of wicked germs waiting around for unprotected chests and backs.

John takes no chances on October. He dons his "heavies" as soon as the teams go out for the first game, and plays safe with the raw drizzle and east wind.

He's taught me to play safe, too, so I go right to Talbot's to buy his fall underwear, and know that he's satisfied and comfy for months to come, with plenty of good wear left over for another season.

Talbot's know from years of experience that October is the big underwear month of the year, and have enlarged this department to meet the demand. They have every thing for every man; the famous Forest Mills brand, the grand old Imperial line, featuring the drop seat, the Duo-Fold for men who prefer the two-piece garments, and undies for short, tall, medium, fat, skinny or the just right. No matter what his size or his personal tastes, Talbot's has laid in a good stock for him, at the price he hoped to find. Or rather the price SHE hoped to find, for while a man looks mainly for comfort, his business manager has her eye on general economy and long faithful wear with woolens which won't shrink, and buttons that stay on. So both of them like to go to Talbot's.

Neckties for Little Boys

Bought by big boys, who know what little boys like. Yes, that's the only way to tell you about the latest shipment of neckties at Posner's, 29 School Street. But there's as much dash and style in those new 50c ties for the very young men as there is for their older brothers. And when they step out in their stunning plaids, tans and reds, which are designed to harmonize with the new Fall suits, they are just as proud as the other men are in their splendid $1 Mogadore ties.

Those Mogadore ties, by the way, are the finest quality and most perfect color combinations I have ever seen in ties. Like a fine quality moire silk, in stripes that are smart, yet dignified, striking, but not loud, and in perfect taste.

A woman always learns something new when she goes to Posner's, and apparently thousands of women are eager to learn, for they have come to regard it as the store where women love to shop. The reason is clear. If it is worth having, they will have it—and if they have it, it is worth having. Every day at Posner's is a good value day, and every day holds its own attractions.

Right now it is shirts. Shirts with two collars, in fine woven color-fast percale, or woven Madras, for $1.59. In the new narrow stripes. All colors, all combinations, but featuring particularly the light and dark grounds.

The Posner Company maintains three stores, too, now for the convenience of us all. One is at 35 Court Street, another on Washington, corner of Avery, and this one at 29 School Street.

Put On Your Bonnet

And shawl, my dear, and take the next train for town. The Miller Apparel Shop's having a sale—so that's where you'll find your gown.

Poor poetry, but a grand sale. There at 43 Winter Street. Dresses for $22.50, in heavy crepe and satins, newest cuts, shades and combinations of shades. One model is very lovely—a Chanel red crepe, with a deep yoke of cream crepe de chine, embroidered with dainty sprays of flowers, accordion pleated crepe at the low belt line and charming puff sleeves of the same.

Which doesn't say a word about the rest of the unique touches or the entire beauty of the line and splendid quality of the material. They do buy those frocks from fine New York houses, Anne, and they do sell them at remarkably moderate prices. Every one of those $22.50 models looks like $30 to me. And in that shop you're going to buy an afternoon dress, a street frock, and an evening gown. I know it, because I've seen the dresses.

And Now, Anne—

I'm going to spring my latest discovery. 'Tis the pride of my pen, and joy of my head. Yes, head, because it's hats. Hand-molded hats.

No longer shall I waver between "to bob or not to bob" when I seek the youthful hat which will encompass my head and my hair. For in Lila's Hat Shoppe, at 41 Winter Street, a designer takes a big French blocked velour, shaped like a peanut straw, and places it upon one's head. Then she clips, pats, tucks and folds until it is molded into the one and only hat for your head, contour of face, and general style.

After the hat is molded, you choose your own trimming, with Parisian models to follow and a wide selection of genuine feathers, ribbons, contrasting velours and ornaments for your selection. In a day or so comes another fitting before the final tacking, and the hat is yours. Just exactly what you wanted, only more so.

The price for the domestic velours is $10, for the imported, $15, which is reasonable indeed, when you realize that the velours and Rayon Soleils are French-made, French-blocked, and French-imported. Lovely shades, lovely lustre—the finest it is possible to procure. And the trimmings are exquisite.

In short, Lila's Hat Shoppe is about the happiest discovery I've made—a little shop, but with an unusual service.

Faithfully yours,

Priscilla

P.S. Another week has gone. Another week away from youth toward age. But what care we for the years—who know the secrets of Virozol?

With Virozol on our dressers, the years can come and go, for our skins keep as fresh and flawless as ever.

A nightly massage with Virozol Swedish Almond Cream followed by a refreshing application of the Virozol Swedish Face Bath brings back the peach bloom and velvet radiance of the golden years. It stimulates the circulation, tones up the muscles and rebuilds broken down tissues.

These preparations are the work of Anny Landen, the famous beauty specialist of Stockholm, Sweden, who spent fourteen years perfecting them. Filene has just taken on the line, and there you will find the Face Bath for $1.25 a bottle, either at the toilet goods counter, or in the beauty parlors in the balcony. Don't let another day go by, Anne, without acquainting yourself with this wonderful source of freshness and charm.

London Expert Says Lemon-Colored Shoes Shocking

New York, Oct. 11.—The best-dressed American men are in New York, in the opinion of "Captain" J. A. Murdocke, an arbiter of fashion in London.

But the lemon-colored shoes of men in Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, too, are shocking.

DIVORCE DECREE GRANTED MRS. LOIS BAKEMAN

Charges that her husband slapped her face at a dinner party, called her vile names at another time, and seized her by the throat, won an uncontested decree nisi for Mrs. Lois Bakeman of Brookline from Joseph Bakeman, Boston wool broker, in Norfolk Probate Court at Dedham today. She was given custody of a minor son, now in a private school.

Although Bakeman had announced he would fight the suit, and bring alienation proceedings against an unnamed man, he did not appear in court today.

Mrs. Bakeman told Judge McCoole they were married in 1904 and had two children, one of them being Mrs. Rufus Lemaire, wife of a theatrical man, now living in New York.

Mrs. Bakeman testified her husband drank heavily and left her one and one-half years ago. A sister, Mrs. Benjamin Cross, corroborated her testimony.

sary to send our men to that fight, or finance it, as it goes along. Once was enough.

SOME DAY, says a London publication, death certificates will tell the truth, for instance:

"Died after thirty years of overwork."

"Smothered to death, worked, lived and slept in unventilated rooms."

"Poisoned by his wife; she did not know how to cook."

TO MILLIONS of death certificates might be added, "Died at the TOP. His brain, never taught to work, gradually dried up."

In America big life insurance companies, that pay bills for millions of funerals, fight foolish living and death very ably, with advertising and free advice.

Under Mr. Haley Fiske's management the Metropolitan Life Company, for instance, has prolonged millions of lives by intelligent health advertising campaigns. It has doubtless saved $10 in continued premiums and diminished death payments for every dollar spent on advertising.

THE BISHOP of Liverpool and "Gloomy" Dean Inge agree that Christians no longer fear or believe in eternal punishment.

The Dean says Christianity has given up the "eternal torment" belief during the past 75 years, and adds, "It is strange men ever believed that God, whom Christ came to reveal, is an implacable torturer."

THE OLD COLORED brother looked at it practically: "I don't believe in fire and brimstone lasting forever, because I don't believe no constitution could stand it."

Those that mourn the loss of an Omnipotent Being, creating miserable, imperfect creatures, then torturing them with fire for billions of years, may find comfort in the fact that things really worth while are not done through fear. ABSENCE of fear make them possible.

HAMILTON FYFE, able British editor, is here to tell us about it. France, an independent agricultural nation, will never pay us a cent, and doesn't care what Uncle Sam does about it.

Germany, depending on trade, will continue to pay something with part of the money she is borrowing from us now, and will gradually cut payments to nothing.

Britain is sorry the gold standard was restored and sorry an arrangement was made to pay us part.

THE ONE ABLE man in Britain's government, according to Mr. Fyfe, is Winston Churchill. It is interesting to remember that he got his intelligence from an American mother, daughter of a New York stock broker, Jerome. It must have come from her, for on his father's side, that of the Marlboroughs, there is little sign of mental life.

However, the Duke of Marlborough married a Vanderbilt girl, with an able father and mother. That ill help to bring back the family whose great founder s'en allait en guerre.

THE REV. DR. COFFIN, president of Union Theological Seminary, says: "I don't think this Presbytery should tell people how to vote. That is what does. We Protestants object to does. We Protestants object to this."

THE CATHOLIC NEWS replies editorially, "The Catholic Church does nothing of the kind. Political topics are never discussed in Catholic churches. No priest would so far forget himself as to tell people how they should vote."

If, however, a candidate were opposed, for nomination or election, because of his being a Catholic, Jew or Protestant, would not the clergy of the different religions be justified in mentioning the fact?

THE ENGLISH are concentrating on alliterative sentences, in place of word puzzles. "Alliteration's artful aid" can be used to advantage often. And to develop knowledge of language the alliteration craze is more useful than the word puzzle.

TO SELECT words for yourself is better than puzzling over words selected by another. Many children have tried to repeat rapidly "shoes and socks shock Susan." The administration, which will soon be asking farmers' votes, might think over this run of words, "Cotton, corn, crops, crisis."

OUR IMMIGRATION laws keep out the best men and women of Europe—enterprising, ambitious people that would like to come.

International smuggling bands are bringing in the worst kind of foreign population, those whose coming is based on crime and deception, men without wives or children, breaking into this country across the Mexican border, as thieves break out of jail.

Eight thousand foreigners are said to be in Mexico now, waiting to be brought in.

It would be better to select the right kind in Europe and admit them openly.

LOS ANGELES, DELAYED, MAY START FROM NEWPORT

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 11 (I.N.S.).—An unfavorable weather forecast today delayed the scheduled flight of the navy dirigible Los Angeles to Dearborn, Mich.

Lieutenant-Commander Joseph E. Rosendahl, skipper of the Los Angeles, received the report from Washington shortly after midnight. He was undecided as to whether the flight would start this afternoon.

Four tentative routes have been planned, three starting from Lakehurst and one from the mast-ship Patoka, in Newport, R. I.

The horses include the pick of the United States army mounts in Virginia, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Vermont and several privately owned.

Cold, clear weather greeted animals and riders on the course to Middlebury. They must take at least nine hours for the 60-mile ride and may take more with loss of points. Computations will be on a basis of 40 per cent. for time record and 60 per cent. for condition.

Peggy A, a half-bred mare, entered by Troop F, Third Cavalry, Fort Myer, Va., has won two years in succession and is contending for final possession of the Service Cup, principal trophy of the race.

FRANCE STRONG FOR FUNDING U. S. DEBT

Paris, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Ratification of the debt funding agreement with the United States remains the foremost question of government policy, notwithstanding the protest made to Premier Poincare by representatives of 400,000 war veterans against approval of the agreement without revision.

The press reaction today to the action of the ex-service men shows that the former combatants exercise an influence that cannot be neglected, but it is pointed out in official circles that the veterans are actuated largely by sentiment, while the question must be settled in Parliament in the face of exacting realities.

Confidence is expressed in governmental circles that the Chamber and Senate will hesitate a long time before upsetting what Poincare has already done to restore French finances, or make impossible what he proposes to do to stabilize the franc.

Stabilization requires a funding of external debts as well as a balancing of the budget and the fixing of a permanent value of currency, the secretary said.

A Boston Story With a Charming Girl Heroine

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Rosemary Merton, youngest daughter in a large Roxbury family, rebels at her poor surroundings and dreams of romance and luxury. She is attending college, but quits and gets a job in a fashionable bookstore through a friend, Nina Clark. Nina takes Rosemary up the back stairs in the building to a studio occupied by a group of artists. They call it the Secret Studio. One Sunday Rosemary and Larry go to the studio alone, where they are surprised by Sloan Whitney. Rosemary later meets Whitney and is strongly attracted to him. He sends her some flowers.

CHAPTER XXV

GERTIE'S wedding—at least, Gertie was going to have a wedding. That was something. Gertie was practical. She didn't set her heart on——

"Is that you, Rosemary?" Ma opened the kitchen door. A warm, spicy smell of sugar and spice and everything nice followed her like a benediction. Her pink face was aglow with triumphed.

"See, lovey, I made the fruitcake, the wedding cake. The richest recipe—and, look, not a speck of scorch for all its richness. Kitty wants me to have it iced, but I wouldn't trust it. There was something I wanted to tell you—oh, yes; Nina Clark telephoned a few minutes ago. She says somebody sent you some flowers, addressed to you at her house, so she opened the box and put them in water."

"For me? Did she say for me, Ma?" Just a plain, little every-

4-FOOT FALL FATAL
Diagram shows how John J. Dolan, 35, of Roxbury, was killed in a fall of only four feet at No. 57 Lawn street, Roxbury. Police are investigating a report that he had attended a party at that address, and tripped on the stairs in departing.

GOES ON TRIAL AS SLAYER NEXT MONTH

Donald M. Ferguson, former attendant at the Shaw Hospital, Lowell, who shot and killed Mrs. Esther A. Frost, elderly grocery store proprietor, in her establishment at Read and First streets, Lowell, on June 28, will be placed on trial for the crime the early part of next month.

Ferguson on the eve of what was to have been his wedding day beat Mrs. Frost to death in order, as he afterward told, to obtain money to purchase his wedding clothes.

PRIEST SAVES BOY BURGLAR FROM JAIL

A plea for leniency made by Rev. Lavislaw Sikora in Municipal Court today won probation for William Growicz, 20, of Holmes avenue, Dorchester, charged with breaking and entering the parish house of St. Mary's Polish Church, Chambers street, and the larceny of $45 and a revolver.

"I know the boy," said Fr. Sikora, "and I believe he will walk the straight and narrow path of righteousness and profit by his experience if the court will be so gracious as to place him on probation."

Young Growicz was arrested by Special Officers Holmes and O'Neill of Station 3, following clever detective work. The parish house was broken into on Saturday, and Fr. Sikora furnished a description given him by several persons who saw a man running away from the church.

The two officers searched the neighborhod, finally capturing Growicz. The officers found splinters in the youth's trousers, which matched the wood in the rear door of the parish house.

Growicz then broke down and confessed, stating he had given the revolver to a man in South Boston, who is now being sought.

HUB BOYS FIGHT COMMON BAN

Like the Boston boys of Revolutionary days who appealed to the British general for undisturbed use of the Comon frog-pond for skating, Boston boys Thursday will appeal to the aPrk Department for permission to play football on the gras of the Common.

The boys wil sek to escape the necessity of playing football on the rough and stony surface of the Common playground.

Several young boys have been injured, it was said, on the rough playground. The privilege is sought for those of fourteen years and under.

William F. Long of the Park Department is sounding out opinion as to whether the usual storm of protest from "protectors of Boston Common" will arise if the request of the boys is granted.

For twenty-five years or more children have not been allowed to romp in their games on the grass of the historic spot, except for a few special ocasion during the term of Andrew J. Peters as Mayor of Boston.

ITALIANS PLANNING BIG TIME

Knights of Columbus, as Usual, Keep Open House All Over the State

The annual Boston police parade, a procession of 6,000 Sons of Italy through the principal streets, a meeting on the Common and a Pythian pageant at the Arena will mark Boston's celebration of the 434th anniversary of the landing of Columbus.

As in years past members of the Knights of Columbus will be hosts all day to their friends and relatives, for Columbus Day is typically significant to the K. of C.

Nor will Boston be alone in its observance. Practically every city and town in the State will have some celebration in keeping with the historical significance of the day. All over the State the K. of C. councils, as in Greater Boston, will maintain open house.

Boston's celebration will begin at 1:15 at the Parkman bandstand on the Common. Speakers will include Mayor Nichols, Eliot Wadsworth, the Rev. Jones I. Corrigan, S. J., Edmund J. Brandon, State Deputy of the Knights of Columbus, Dr. Abraham Myerson of Tufts College, Cav. Saverio R. Romano of the Sons of Italy, and the Rev. Gardner M. Day of Trinity Church.

The parade of the Sons of Italy will begin at 2:15. John Soporito will be marshal. The parade will be reviewed by Mayor Nichols, and Commander Mario Vattani, Royal Italian Consul. After the parade the Sons of Italy will gather on the Common in mass meeting.

HOLLAND GALE KILLS 19, WRECKS MANY SHIPS

London, Oct. 11 (I.N.S.)—Nineteen persons are reported dead and many ships were wrecked in Dutch waters as a result of the severe gale which swept over all Holland during the week-end, according to a Central News dispatch. Considerable property damage throughout the country is reported.

Berlin, Oct. 11 (I.N.S.)—Violert storms have swept Northwestern Germany, doing heavy damage. Many persons are reported to have been injured by falling trees and storm debris, but thus far no loss of life has been reported.

The Dutch schooner Neptunas sunk at Cuxhaven, but her crew was rescued. All shipping along the Baltic coast has been suspended.

SEVEN CANONS AND THREE PRIESTS HELD

Mexico City, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Special dispatches from Iguala, State of Guerrero, say seven Catholic canons and three priests have been arrested at Chilapa and started for Mexico City under military escort, supposedly charged with seditious activities in connecion with the religious situation.

RABBI WISE ATTACKS Y.M.C.A.

Declares Destroyers of Labor Shall Not Reduce It to a Strike-Breaking Agency

Detroit, Oct. 11.—"The Y. M. C. A. shall not become the Sunday club of the would-be destroyers of labor and be reduced to the level of a strikebreaker agency," Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York asserted today before the convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Declaring that "the open shop is the shop open to industrial despotism," Rabbi Wise made an earnest plea for aid and support of the Passaic (N. J.) textile strikers. He prefaced his discussion of the Passaic strike with a vigorous attack on the Detroit board of commerce in seeking to close Detroit pulpits to organized labor speakers.

The doors of the Detroit Y. M. C. A. were opened today to a spokesman for the American Federation of Labor.

Acceptance by John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, of an invitation to address the weekly meeting of the Detroit Ministerial Association in the Central Y. M. C. A. building paved the way for an exposition of the spiritual aims of the American Federation of Labor in the building in which William Green, president of the Federation, had been scheduled to speak yesterday, until his invitation was rescinded by the association's board of directors.

The ministers' invitation to Mr. Frey came through the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, under whose auspices President Green spoke Sunday at a "mass meeting of citizens of Detroit" at the First Congregational Church.

MAN LOCKED UP IN CARLOAD OF CRACKERS

Locked in a freight car of crackers while he slept, according to the police, William Johnson of Pine street, South End, was arrested today for trespass after his shouts for help caused his rescue just as the train was moving away from Boston. He was arrested by Railroad Policeman Daniel Lehan of the Boston & Maine on the spur track of a Charlestown cracker factory. Johnson was held for arraignment in Charlestown District Court.

DEBS UNDER DOCTOR'S CARE IN SANITARIUM

Elmhurst, Ill., Oct. 11 (I.N.S.)—Eugene V. Debs, internationally known Socialist leader, is ill in the Lindlahr Sanitarium here. Debs, it was said, is suffering from a generally rundown condition, and, although it is expected it will be some time before he is able to return to his home, physicians declared his condition was not serious. His brother, Theodore Debs, is with him here.

ANOTHER GIRL NAMES SHERIFF

Montpelier, Vt., Oct. 11.—Governor Franklin S. Billings returned to the capitol today from his Summer residence in Woodstock to review the State' case against Sheriff Wallace L. Fairbanks, charged with a statutory offence with Miss Irma Stoodley, 20-year-old State ward of Waterbury.

The sheriff, at liberty under $2000 bonds, is slated to appear in Washington County Court tomorrow where trial date will be set.

Irma Stoodley is in jail. She pleaded guilty to a statutory charge.

Another witness is Miss Minnie Olive Rushford, 17, of Waterbury. She is said to have named the sheriff before the Grand Jury last Tuesday.

G. B. Shaw Scenario Refused, He Pans U. S. Movies

New York, Oct. 11.—David Wark Griffith offers some light on recent panning of American movies by George Bernard Shaw.

Dave refused an offer of G. B. S. to write a scenario, timidly suggesting that it might not be so easy as it seemed.

Then G. B. S. became a trifle sarcastic.

WHITTALL MILLS GO BACK ON FULL TIME

Worcester, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The carpet mills of the Whittall Associates will begin today to operate on full time after having been on part time most of the Summer. About 1,500 employes are affected by the order, which now puts the mills back on a six-day per week schedule, with an eight-hour day. The part time schedule has been eight hours a day for four days a week.

PLAN SHIP FOR HAWAII FLIGHT

New Haven, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—A dirigible capable of maintaining a regular, reliable schedule between San Francisco and Hawaii is the objective of plans of the Navy Department, Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur said today.

"I do not say that it will be put into regular service, but it will be so equipped that it can establish a regular scheduled route at any time," the secretary added.

Secretary Wilbur is in New Haven to visit his daughter, Miss Edna Wilbur, a teacher in the French department in the New Haven High School.

Secretary Wilbur said the Navy would send two planes soon from Hampton Roads, Va., to Panama on a non-stop flight of 1,800 miles.

She secretary was non-committal about the possibility of a flight to the South Pole by Commander Byrd with Navy cooperation.

CINDERELLA IN PLOT TO END LIFE

Browning's Child-Wife Says Death Looked Better Than "Torture"

In the second installment of her own story of life with "Daddy" Browning "Peaches" tells more of the terrors that caused her to leave him.

By PEACHES BROWNING

New York, Oct. 11.—If I hadn't left Mr. Browning when I did I probably would be dead by now by own own hand. That is horrible to think about, but it couldn't be worse than the life I was leading with the so called "Cinderella Man."

Even death is preferable to some things.

I was at the end of the rope. I could not bear it any longer.

When Mr. Browning and I were married, six months ago, there were thousands of people who said it couldn't last. They said no girl of 15 could live happily with a man 51. At that time I loved Mr. Browning very much, and I laughed at all these predictions. He seemed strong an virile and at that moment I couldn't even picture the time when I wouldn't love him.

"I will show them," I said, and I was determined to go through the years side by side with my husband.

But when things began to develop as they did my pride was forgotten. I no longer cared what people said. Only one thing was in my mind—to get away.

I was afraid to trust myself in the dark of the night when I lay in bed thinking over the terrors of my life with him. I was afraid my thoughts might lead me to almost anything.

Then to ease my mind I would try to think of peace and rest far away from that man. Even the thought of rest and peace in death itself was no terror to me.

But I am young. My whole life is before me. Perhaps I can yet salvage something from the wreck of my unhappy life with Mr. Browning. That is what I thought in my calmer moments. But in the night, in the darkness, I was often near hysteria.

It was then that I was afraid of losing every hope of rescuing myself. There were published reports that Mary Spas, whom Mr. Browning wanted to adopt last year, tried to commit suicide after she had spent several days with him.

I lived with him almost six months as his wife!

There were rumors a few weeks ago that I had tried to kill myself. These reports probably came about because of my hysterical condition at times. Someone must have heard me weeping in my room when I was alone. I might even have sobbed, "I wish I were dead." Someone might have heard me cry out that I would rather take poison than stay out with my husband.

I might have said almost anything in that condition. The reports of my attempted suicide were not true, but perhaps they might have been if I had not left my husband when I did.

JAILED FOR INSULTING PREMIER MUSSOLINI

Rome, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Amerigo Dumini, who served a short term for his part in the kidnaping and killing of the Socialist Deputy Matteotti, today was found guilty of insulting Premier Mussolini. For this offense and for possessing firearms he was sentenced to fourteen months' imprisonment and fined 100 lire.

It was established that he had said: "If I got seven years for the Matteotti murder, the president of the council deserved thirty." (Dumini's sentence in the Matteotti affair was reduced to three months by king's amnesty.)

Dumini vainly pleaded that by the word "president" he did not allude to Mussolini, but to Giuseppe Viola, president of the association of shock troops. Viola was acquitted during the Matteotti trial.

PRESIDENCY IS FORECAST FOR DANA

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

"President next" is the forecast being made by friends of General Manager Edward Dana of the Boston Elevated, following his election as first vice-president of the American Railway Transportation and Traffic Association at the annual convention at Cleveland. He has served with several committees in this association since 1913. He was second vice-president during the past year. For five years he has been chairman of the committee on education of the A. E. R. T. A., which has developed comprehensive plans for employe education among electric railway companies.

When I last heard a Boston Elevated trustee discussing the road's affairs, he stated the trustees were always ready to receive and consider suggestions from the public. Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols comes within this classification, I assume, and seems to have contributed his bit in the matter of suggesting the speeding up of certain improvements.

"The stock market," says the Old State Street Trader, "appears just now to have its eyes centred mostly on two things. One is the regular meeting of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston watched for an advance in the rediscount rate. The other is the appearance of articles by Professor W. Z. Ripley of Harvard in a Boston monthly."

"Henry Ford, with Mrs. Ford and a secretary are touring Cape Cod," reads an announcement. This may recall to some minds the difference between a secretary and a "secretary" in New England. I presume Mr. Ford is accompanied along the Cape by a person, male or female, more or less, as the words imply acquainted with his business secrets. Otherwise we might picture Mr. and Mrs. Ford as traveling with one of those extraordinarily large old pieces of tall, angular furniture, with many pigeonholes and recesses, that used to be called "secretaries" hereabouts.

Ukulele players, appearing as professional entertainers before Boston trade organizations, have a stock pun about "I will now play on the eucalyptus." We are reminded of this by anouncement that a $750,000 mill is to be built in Brazil to make newsprint paper from the much-abused tree referred to. At the same time word comes that forest research experts in India have discovered how to use bamboo as pulpwood in manufacture of white paper. These proposed exploitations will take time and for a few years, at least, we doubt if the New England and nearby newsprint industry will have any new competition worth worrying about.

Harvard Economic Service in its latest weekly letter says: "Although money rates are slightly higher than at any other time in the past two years, the money market remains relatively easy, and the decline of industrial stock prices is probably another intermediate movement like the intermediate movements of recent years."

VON TIRPITZ DENOUNCES MEN AROUND KAISER

ing France and Belgium to the ground—England's demands with regard to superiority in naval construction will be very moderate, and I cannot rid myself of the view that a fair agreement regarding naval construction is exactly as important for Germany as it is for England.

"I know my dear excellency, you do not like Churchill! I, too, am of the opinion that he is an unreliable man, a man full of weaknesses, a man who works for the success of one day and who plays for the applause of the gallery. The Churchill, who comes down to breakfast in the morning is entirely different from the one that one meets in the evening. However, that man has one obsession—no matter what his condition—and that is the desire that he may be destined to come to a naval arrangement with Germany.

"In my eyes, the German fleet has never been anything else, and never must be anything else, than the indispensable reserve of a sound world trade. And just as a conscientious director of a company does not touch his reserves until forced to do so by direct necessity, the fleet should not be pulled into the war as long as there is not an imperative need for such a risk.

ENGLAND'S NEED

"What can you attain in an open sea battle? That our ships are better and that our officers and crews are infinitely better is a belief held not only by us Germans but also by very well informed Englishmen.

"We must occupy ourselves with the preparation of peace. Do you think, my dear excellency, that it would be a happy preparation for peace if the German fleet succeeded in gaining a victory over the British? It would be a mistake to believe this. To my mind the contrary is true.

"When the English see their army destroyed; when they see that this disgustingly petty economic war which is designed to steal our money from our pockets, remains a hopeless undertaking; finally when they are overcome by nausea at the thought that they have become the bedfellows of the Slavs and of the Yellow Race—then they will surely be ready for peace.

"If, however, they have previously suffered a great defeat at sea, then they must fight to their last man and their last farthing. England's right to exist in her present form ceases the moment she has lost her naval supremacy.

REPLY TO BALLIN

"I consider it is a great mistake to overheat German public opinion and the German press so insanely against England. I was in Berlin this week and I am shocked at the boundless dreams which not only the Berliners but also prominent men from the Rhineland and Westphalia indulge in. They consider a landing of our army in England a foregone conclusion and feel that the annexation of the best British Colonies is already a matter beyond dispute. In their opinion Calais, Boulogne, Ostend and Antwerp are already ours—and so forth. It will be a good thing to demobilize these sentiments slowly."

My answer to Ballin:

"Charleville, Oct. 6, 1914.

My Dear Herr Ballin:

"Your letter of October 1 has interested me greatly, and I found much in it that agrees with my own ideas. However, I am inclined to doubt whether the conclusion of peace can bring an alliance between England, France and Germany.

"I have always been for an 'understanding' with England on naval construction, even in the days of Chancellor von Buelow. We were even very close to it in the Summer of 1909, but negotiations were shipwrecked against all sorts of reasons and pretexts which England gave in delaying and finally rejecting pour parlers.

"When Haldane was in Berlin in 1912, I declared myself prepared to withdraw our whole construction plan for that year if England would declare herself 'neutral' in a war not provoked by us. Haldane answered that England could not use the word 'neutral' in any arrangement with us because of her other engagements."

FISHER'S VIEWS

Letter from Tirpitz to Admiral von Capelle.

"Charleville, Oct. 16, 1914.

"My Dear Capelle:

"As regards a sea battle, I am by no means for an open fight at any price. What I consider wrong is the complete passiveness of our fleet. . . . The last order which Mueller put over kills the spirit of the fleet. I cannot share the view that England's willingness to make peace would be weakened if she suffered a reverse at sea. As long as England goes against us with all her might and main we can only do the same thing against her.

"After The Hague conference Lord Fisher made the statement that there were three principles to be observed in war, namely:

"1. The essence of war is violence.

"2. Moderation in war is imbecility.

"3. Hit first, hit hard, and hit everywhere."

Letter from Captain Hopmann regarding a visit with the Crown Prince at Stenay.

"Charleville, Feb. 4, 1915.

"Last night I was invited to dinner at Stenay. After dinner the Crown Prince took me aside for a while and began the conversation by saying that it was too bad that in the naval action of the 24th the bulk of our forces were not out in time.

"I admitted this and told him that the Secretary of State for the navy (Tirpitz) had held since the outset of the war that it was a mistake to keep the fleet back at the river mouths.

"The Crown Prince said he knew this but Tirpitz had not penetrated with his idea. He added his wife had written him the other day that Admiral von Mueller actually governed the fleet and he asked whether this was true. I replied there was no doubt that in the great strategical direction of the fleet von Mueller had exerted an important influence upon His Majesty. . . .

"The Crown Prince said, 'Yes, that is the trouble, that these people (von Mueller, von Pohl, etc.) have such an influence with the Kaiser. One only has to look at those fellows, Lyncker, Treutler, Muller, Valentini—all weak sisters without a spinal column, always anxious to spare the Kaiser any unpleasantness and any difficult decisions.'"

CRITICIZES KAISER

"'Believe me, I know my father very well. He evades every serious discussion . . . Only the other day, in the dispute between Hindenburg and Falkenhayn I went to my father and spoke most warmly for Hindenburg, who had said he could not work with THAT chief of the general staff. He only half listened to me, and afterward Lyncker et al as usual poured raspberry sauce over the whole matter. We certainly have every reason to be thankful that Heaven has given us two such men as Hindenburg and Ludendorff! Lord knows what would have happened without those two'."

Letter from Tirpitz to Captain von Trotha:

"Berlin, Jan. 12, 1916.

"My dear Trotha:

. . . "There is a probability that we succumb in a war of exhaustion.

"THE INFLUENCE OF CERTAIN PERSONS UPON THE KAISER IS UNCANNY. THE LATTER HIDES HIS HEAD COMPLETELY IN THE SAND. . . ."

Ballin to Admiral von Capelle:

"Hamburg, Jan. 21, 1915

. . . "My conviction that in Germany's interest it would be very desirable to emerge from this war with such an understanding with England as would create an equality between the two powers and would lead to the two Empire watching together over the peace of the world, has not changed. There has only been a change in my ideas as to the way in which the desired aim could be attained.

"Formerly I believed that we could quickly penetrate to Calais and that if we once had occupied the French channel coast this fact would make such a tremendous moral impression and exert practical pressure upon England that the English would be prepared to make peace with us in the way I have indicated.

"In the meantime we have not got to Calais and for the present hardly have any prospects of getting there. In the meantime moreover, the English government has resorted to such foul means in its conduct of war that every consideration on our part would be weakness; and finally, the blockade of Germany and of the neutral countries is becoming a great menace to our supply of cereals and raw materials."

AMERICAN BUSINESS REPORTS EXCELLENT

American business, in first nine months of 1926, expanded in new activities, further stabilizing the country's economic condition, United States Chamber of Commerce announced in a business survey. Employment has been greater this year than in 1925, payrolls larger, and production in industries reached a new high level.

Department store sales increased in volume, railroad car loadings are at a high peak, and virtually all commodities produced are actually passing into use.

The Chamber believes cotton growers are equipped to solve their surplus problem from experience gained in handling large cotton crops in preceding years.

Book Creates Furore in German Press

By S. DUNBAR WEYER

Berlin, Oct. 11 (Universal Cable)—Grand Admiral von Tirpitz's book, many sensational parts of which have already been published in America, struck like a bombshell into the dull political season this week when the German press, announcing its appearance, printed many columns of extracts.

The admiral's revelations add new fuel to the violent political controversy between the right and left each side selecting such quotations as support its own charges and arguments.

On one point, however, all agree that the case Tirpitz presents with a collection of startling documents is in the main not so much a case of vindication of the Grand Admiral but a case convicting the old Imperial system.

The leading Democratic organs, the Berliner Tageblatt and the Vossische Zeitung rather back up the Kaiser's policy on U-boats and concessions to America. They say the Emperor estimated the danger of American intervention more clearly and more correctly than did others.

Secrecy Marks Welcome of Victorious Cardinals by St. Louis Fans

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—As a precaution against any "mobbing" by enthusiastic fans, the world's champion Cardinals will not be brought into Union Station here this afternoon when they arrive from New York, where they downed the Yankees in the seventh and deciding game of the series yesterday.

According to plans announced by the reception committee, the players' special will be met at a point unannounced, and taken from the train to their hotels and homes in automobiles. The train is due to arrive at 5.10 p. m.

The players will be guarded from the time they arrive until 8 o'clock tonight, when a public reception will be held at Sportsman's Park, to which all are invited to see the champions.

Each of the players will be introduced and called upon to tell the crowd "how they trimmed the Yankees."

The precautions were taken to prevent a recurrence of the incidents which marked the arrival of the team here last week from New York, when they had to fight their way through masses of cheering fans to their waiting machines.

"I Was Scared to Death," Mumbles Very Sleepy Alex

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 11 (A.P.)—After a hilarious night, rattling to St. Louis from New York, scene of their World's Series conquest, the Cardinals were sound asleep in their berths upon arrival here at 9:30 a. m. Only Grover Cleveland Alexander, yesterday's hero, could be aroused sufficiently to answer a single question.

"How did you feel when you were sent to the box in the seventh inning to stop the Yankees?" he was asked.

"Scared to reath," he mumbled, as he ducked back in his berth.

FLATLEY LAUDS THREE HEROES OF THE SERIES

By NICK FLATLEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Thanking whatever gods there be, the St. Louis Cardinals are rolling off to their respective homes today, collectively the baseball champions of the world and [illegible] richer by something more than [illegible].

Nick Flatley

The Cards won the seventh game of the series, a hectic affair in which all the drama and tragedy of sport was spread on a soggy field for a crowd that braved rain and speculators to watch two staggering ball clubs decide a drawn out issue.

The Yanks cracked in one pale blue inning and thereby handed over the glory and the gold to their National League rivals. Two frantic errors in the fourth chapter helped three of the Cardinals over the plate, and the natives never could draw up alongside.

That one stumble erased the effect of a monumental home run that Babe Ruth had knocked out in the previous stanza. It killed the spirit of the crowd and the Huggins Clan and presented a second successive world title to the National League. And no more could be asked of any one section of a ball game.

Old Grover Cleveland Alexander trudged phlegmatically from the bull pen in the seventh to relieve the fluttering Haines, and wheeled his snapping curves past the Yankee bats right down to the finish.

Old Grover was the hero of the series. He won two ball games, alone and unaided, and he saved the most important one, when his venerable arm should have been wrapped in bandages and liniment.

THE tumult and the shouting has centered on Alex and Ruth and Pennock in this series, but one must needs hand a few yards of praise to Tommy Thevenow, Cardinal shortstop. He was just as much a hero as anybody in the frenzied war.

He just about made the St. Louis ball club by his remarkable playing all through a tough campaign, and he certainly held it together during a series where any least slip on his part would have meant disaster.

WINSOR FIELD HOCKEYISTS PLAY LEXINGTON TEAM

The Winsor graduate team of the Boston Field Hockey Association will clash with the Lexington team in a league game tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The newly reorganized league, which added the Winsor graduates to this season's schedule, have mapped out a stiff schedule.

What About Killifer, Cards' Great Coach?

By BIRNEY P. LYNCH

ADD heroes of the World Series—Bill Killifer

While the paens of praise are reverberating through baseball circles for the mighty of the late blue ribbon of baseball, pause and consider the lowly coach of the St. Louis pitching staff, about whom not one word of praise has been sounded by the baseball critics.

Alone in majesty, the veteran battery mate of Alexander [illegible] has occupied his seat on the [illegible] bench in New York and St. Louis [illegible] the playing of the [illegible] and his name once a [illegible] word on [illegible] of fandom has not [illegible].

Killifer

But [illegible] the [illegible] Killifer, a veteran catcher and former manager of the Chicago Cubs, teamed with Alexander first in Philadelphia, then Chicago, as the greatest battery in the big leagues in their day. Then Killifer became a manager and Alex toiled under his banner with the Chicago Cubs.

Killifer passed from the Chicago Cubs to become coach of the Cardinal pitchers. From that moment the power of Alexander waned [illegible] once great pitcher became [illegible] other pitcher seemed to have lost the cunning, the speed and the control that had kept him at the top of the National League pitchers.

Under the regime of Joe McCarthy in Chicago, Alex did not get a [illegible]. He was dissatisfied, pined for Killifer, the man who shared the [illegible]est glory of his thirteen years as big league twirler. Eventually [illegible] came to words with McCarthy and the Chicago boss placed [illegible] market via the waiver route.

St. Louis grabbed Alexander without hesitation on the [illegible] counsel of Killifer and he immediately became their leading pitcher.

Alexander

Killifer knew how to handle Alexander. The St. Louis coach knew his strength and his weakness and Alexander was transformed from just a pitcher to his former greatness.

Killifer also was in a large measure responsible for the development of Flint Rhem and Jess Haines, as two of St Louis' most dependable boxmen. Bringing to the St. Louis club a world of valuable experience, Killifer took over the pitching staff and the catchers. Net result—Alexander was the greatest pitcher in the series and Bob O'Farrell, a Chicago castoff, became one of the finest catchers in the major leagues.

The ex-Chicago Cubs' boss supplied just the touch of finesse that Manager Rogers Hornsby [illegible] to [illegible] a mediocre ball club [illegible] a pennant winner.

When you count the World Series heroes—remember the silent [illegible] of Bill Killifer, who sat on the Cardinals' bench and by his [illegible] helped the Cardinals to grab baseball's greatest prize. Remember that the Cards probably would not have had Alexander but for Killifer and remember that it was the [illegible]ing of Killifer that made the St. Louis battery men something [illegible] mere machines.

Rogers Hornsby is a clever manager, but he cannot handle men [illegible] more experienced, [illegible] Killifer.

$20,000,000 Bet on the World Series to Break Record

New York, Oct. 11 (I.N.S.)—Not less than $20,000,000 changed hands on the world series. This was the estimate of Broadway gamblers today as [illegible] "pay off" began. It was said that two million dollars were bet on Sunday's game.

The event thus became the biggest betting series on record, in addition to being the richest. All attendance records were broken when a total of [illegible]8,051 persons saw the seven games and the total receipts of [illegible] was another high water mark.

HENIGAN BROTHERS ENTER COLUMBUS CLUB RUN

Jimmie and Tom Henigan [illegible] Bell are among the entries for the annual 10-mile road race of the Columbus Club of Dorchester which starts at 2 p. m. on Columbus Day. Jimmie Henigan [illegible] the [illegible] record holder for the course.

Beginning at the clubhouse at Pearl and Pleasant streets, Dorchester, the race continues along Stoughton street to Hancock street, to Bowdoin to Washington, through Codman square to Talbot avenue and Blue Hill avenue to Mattapan square.

The return route includes Blue Hill avenue, Columbia road to Edward Everett square, to East Cottage street and through Pleasant street to the club house.

ALEX REPAYS CARDS' PILOT BY FEATS

By DAMON RUNYON
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1926, by Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Old Grover Cleveland Alexander, with his [illegible] high above his [illegible], walked in out of a fog into the seventh game of the World Series [illegible] champions of all the [illegible] world.

They beat the New York Yankees 3 to [illegible], which was the situation when old Grover Cleveland Alexander appeared on the scene bowed by the weight of his [illegible] years [illegible] back.

Damon Runyon

Jesse Joseph Haines [illegible] had been pitching for [illegible] Yankees [illegible] ninth [illegible] by Earl [illegible] Marcus Aurelius Koenig, a [illegible] Meusel had [illegible].

LAZZERI FLIVVERS.

It is fortunate for the Cardinals [illegible] Grover Cleveland Alexander at the moment the [illegible] Haines [illegible]. They say Grover had [illegible] himself up under [illegible]. Others claim that he was [illegible] his favorite chair down at [illegible] discoursing over his previous victories in the series [illegible] mine host Will Lahiff, and [illegible] the Cardinals chipped in [illegible] a taxi to send for Grover [illegible] sent word by the taxi jockey [illegible] his presence was urgently re[illegible] at the baseball orchard and it [illegible] be worth $2,000 to [illegible] the trip, the difference between the individual winners' and losers' end of the series. [illegible] Grover sighed and accompanied the taxi back to the Yankee Stadium, but it is said he insisted Mr. Lahiff go with him.

ALEX APPEARS.

He did not care to take such a long ride without somebody to talk to. I do not vouch for this report, you understand. All I know is that Grover Cleveland Alexander may usually be found in the tavern when he is in New York, and that he appeared out of the fog that hung over the Yank yard in the seventh inning.

There is room for doubt that Jesse Joseph Haines could have carried on to a successful conclusion, and it is

50,000 EXPECTED AT RACE

Speed Demons Ready for 250-Mile Auto Classic at Rockingham Track Tomorrow

The 250 mile auto race classic will be run off at the Rockingham Motor Speedway, Salem, N. H., tomorrow afternoon. [illegible] from all parts of New England [illegible] expected to witness the [illegible] contest.

The [illegible] program [illegible] two 25-mile sprints [illegible] all the drivers entered [illegible] mile grind.

The total amount to be distributed in prize money will be $25,000. The two sprints will each have a $2,500 purse and the grand [illegible]. The winners will receive $[illegible] as first prize in the short sprints and $8,000 for the long one.

ELEVEN QUALIFY.

But eleven of the twenty or more drivers have as yet been able to qualify and those of them who have not must do so either today or early tomorrow morning. Four of the eleven, Cliff Woodbury, Fred Comer, Frank Elliott and Frank Lockhardt qualified last Friday while the other seven, Pete DePaolo, Harry Hartz, Dave Lewis, Leon Duray, Peter Kreiss, Bennie Hill and Dr. William Shattuck made the grade on Saturday.

Several of the drivers made the attempt on Saturday but failed to make the required average of 1[illegible] miles per hour. This is 5 miles faster than has ever been required in any event on a speedway before.

Three men who are close enough to the top in total of points for the 1926 championship that a win in any or all of these races, would virtually assure the winner the coveted honor, are entered in the race. These men are Harry Hartz, Frank Lockhardt and Pete DePaolo.

'FOUR HORSEMEN' ENTERED.

Then, there is, what, to most men in the know, is the greatest danger to the hopes of these three drivers, namely, the "Four Horsemen." The "Four Horsemen" are Leon Duray, Bob McDonough, Dave Lewis and Peter Kreiss. They have derived their odd names from the fact that they will drive the four "Front Wheel Drive Millers" [illegible] have been burning up the boards all over the circuit this year.

That speed enthusiasts may look forward to some new and startling speed records tomorrow, seems to be assured, for in the qualifying trials of Friday and Saturday, despite the terrific winds that was blowing, the world record for a mile and one quarter lap was broken by no less than six men, with Harry Hartz bettering it by exactly four miles to the hour. Hartz qualifying speed was [illegible] miles per hour, while [illegible] Lewis and Hill [illegible] at 133.8. The old record [illegible] was 132.3 miles per hour.

Meusel Forgot He Needed Something to Throw

By "BUGS" BAER

THE St. Louis are now champions of all the world within the jurisdiction of the umpires.

WHEN a man is hanging on by his eyebrows it is dangerous to wink. But the Cards not only did plenty of winking but they also cracked a few old jokes [illegible]. One of the old jokes was Alexander, the guy who was run out of Chicago for tipping his hat to a brewery chimney.

THERE were only 40,000 people in the park when Ruth walked out on the field. Babe looked in amazement at the 40,000 and said "My gosh, am I becoming a hermit?"

ONE speculator was almost right when he hollered "Here you are. Season tickets for the world series."

THE series has run nine days. The war of the cities is now over and you can pull your blankets up around your ears and leave a call for the Army-Navy game.

ALEX gets three shares of the series money. The only way to bat against his Chinese pitching, is to use chopsticks.

MEUSEL made a double pass on a fly ball that was the candle that lighted us to bed. The playing half of the Meusel brothers wanted to make a quick throw to the plate but forgot he must have something to throw.

THEY should clip the next world series down to five games and then Alexander wouldn't have to take his uniform off.

WEATHER BALKS WOMAN'S LONG SWIM TEST

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (A. P.)—Unfavorable water conditions faced Mrs. Charlotte Moore Schoemmel of New York today as she started the second leg of her swim from Albany to New York in an attempt to break the six-day record for the trip made by Mrs. [illegible] Corson.

Mrs. Schoemmel took to the water again at Coeymans, ten miles south of here, shortly after 8:15 a. m. The temperature of the water was 51 degrees, while that of the air was several degrees lower. The tide was in her favor, but a strong wind blowing up-stream kicked up a choppy sea which worked to the disadvantage of the swimmer.

Mrs. Schoemmel planned to swim for three hours and rest for one hour and to keep this schedule during the daylight hours. Her trainers doubted if the adverse water conditions would allow her to stick to her plan.

'I Am the Goat'--Meusel Thevenow Hero--O'Farrell

By BOB MEUSEL,
Outfielder for Yankees

New York, Oct. 11.—We lost! The banner that indicates the championship of the baseball world goes to St. Louis. And as it passes from us, I realize that our defeat was largely due to an error of mine—and to my failure to hit in a pinch.

If there is any World Series goat, I am it. I'll take the responsibility because I think it is mine. And in taking it and remembering the last game, I become heartsick over it all.

For if I had only caught O'Farrell's fly ball, we probably would have won the game two to nothing instead of losing it—and tossing off the championship.

There's no real excuse I can offer for that muff on O'Farrell in the fourth. It was an easy fly to catch. I guess in 10,000 tries for such a fly, I'd make a putout 9,999 times.

I have an admiration for those Cardinals—and a great respect. I'll say they were lucky to win—that they didn't do it on really earned runs but due, mainly, to my error, plus the slip-up of Koenig's. But there's no taking away from them the glory of being a great ball club, a game ball club and one that plays the game through every minute that it lasts—and plays it well.

By BOB O'FARRELL

New York, Oct. 11.—We're champions!

It makes us happy—and the greatest happiness of it all comes with the thought that back in St. Louis they must be glad in the knowledge that we made good on our promise and have given to the old town a world's championship baseball flag after all the years of waiting.

I'll admit that we outlucked the Yankees in the final game and won because of the breaks we got. But I think we won the series on our merits.

I guess of all our heroes, Thevenow is the real one. That boy's fielding saved at least two runs. His hit in the fourth sewed up the ball game for us. If he hadn't pasted that single to right just when he did, we'd have been losers by a 3 to 1 score.

But don't overlook the mighty old Alex. What a thrill there was in seeing him come onto the mound just when we needed him most. Bases filled with Yankees and a hit or an error or a base on balls would either have tied us or bounced us into defeat. But along came Alex to strike out Lazzeri—and the end of the Yankee rally, and really write "finish" on the World's Series of 1926.

TIGERS PREPARE FOR GAME WITH MIDDIES

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 11.—No casualties outside of slight bruises after Saturday's battle with the strong Washington and Lee eleven were found today among the Princeton football squad.

Bill Roper is dissatisfied with the Tigers' showing against the Generals and is planning a strenuous campaign this week to whip the team into shape for the Navy warriors next Saturday.

WALTHAM HIGH AFTER GRID SUPREMACY

By EDDIE DONDERO

Waltham High School, with its goal line uncrossed, is weaving its way toward the State championship.

Eddie Dondero

In the Witch City, the football enthusiasts seem to think that it is a three-cornered race between Waltham, Medford and Haverhill.

These same fans are picking Waltham to cop the mythical gonfalon. They base their predictions on the big scores that Waltham ran up against Watertown and Providence Technical School, especially the win over Bill [illegible] contingent.

Providence after barely losing to Newton by a 3 to 0 score in a preliminary game, fell easily before Jack Leary's title seekers. The score might have been larger, the same fans reason, if Leary had not had an eye to the future and sent in his second and third elevens.

Salem was galloping toward the flag, earlier in the year after displaying a great forward pass attack in its practice sessions and first few games. This same form of attack failed against Waltham [illegible] the Leary ball carriers ran riot [illegible] the Witch City forward wall.

Medford and Haverhill, the only other contenders, are on the Waltham schedule and big doings are expected when these games roll around.

Waltham's strength is not alone in the minds and loyalty of its followers, though Jack Leary has a real team. It is an ideal eleven with powerful linemen, fast ends, a real general at quarterback and three other ball carriers who rank with the best.

Celebrating the holiday tomorrow is the pleasure that every schoolboy team in Greater Boston will take. Somerville wins all the blue ribbons if they can score against their traditional rivals, Medford, at Dilboy Field.

We met Captain George "Blonde" Chalmers, the Medfordite leader, and he refuses to even nod his head when asked about his club's chances. "Perhaps they will surprise us," was his statement, but maybe he is lifting a line from Gloomy Gil Dobie's inventory at Cornell.

Newton skips to Everett in the afternoon in the opening Suburban League game of the season. Cambridge Latin and Rindge Tech, both of the University City, will bring back memories of the Civil War when they collide at Russell Field before noon.

A double header with Boston English High School meeting Trade School and Mechanic Arts facing Dorchester is listed at Fenway Park at 10:30 a. m.

Doc Flemming's Commerce eleven leaves for Lawrence, where the Mill Towners will parade.

Norwood takes on Latin School.

Crosby and Welch Rise to Top Rank in Golf World in One Season

By BILL GRIMES

One of the most popular achievements of the season was the victory scored by Perley F. Crosby, of Woodland, and Tommy Welch, the famous station master, who plays from Scarboro, in the Sandy Burr four ball best ball tournament.

Although Crosby and Welch have been prominent in golfing circles this season they are practically new to the game.

Bill Grimes.

Crosby broke into the win column at the Norfolk Golf Club over a year ago last Spring. He entered this tournament carrying a 21 handicap but upon turning in a gross 79 which gave him a net 58, some unofficial handicap committee reduced his handicap to 18, and instead of winning the low net, he took second net. During the remainder of last year, Crosby was right up with the winners of net prizes but upon almost every occasion his handicap was reduced until now he is carrying only a 7.

During the past two years there are few golfers who have spent more time practising and playing the game than Crosby. With very few exceptions, Crosby has played golf every day for two years and he even went so far as to make a pilgrimage to Florida last Winter to keep his hand in.

BENEFICIAL TRIP.

Evidently his trip to southland was beneficial to his game for he started off this season in fine style and has been playing better than his handicap all year. One of the finest rounds of golf that Crosby shot this season was his 71 in the Sandy Burr open. Before joining Woodland this Spring Crosby was a member at Sandy Burr, and there are few with a better knowledge of the Wayland layout. Another very notable feat of Crosby's was his 2-3-3-3-3 at Blue Hill.

Tommie Welch broke into the limelight as a golfer in the mid Summer tournament of the Woodland Golf Club a year ago, when he was the medalist, and then went through match play to the finals, when he was defeated by Al Ulmer the former Florida State champion.

Like Crosby, Welch has been very successful in tournaments this season, his first in competition. After the Woodland event last season, Tommie did not play until this Spring, but he has been going so well that he is crowding Emory Stratton for the honor of being the best medal player in this section.

At Sandy Burr, Crosby and Welch nosed out Charlie Crane and Wilfred Ouimet for low gross with 147. The day was wholly unsuitable for golf. The cold wind, of high velocity, which swept across Sandy Burr, froze up Welch almost completely in the morning round. It is doubtful if the popular station master ever missed as many shots as he did at "The Burr."

GREAT GOLF.

He came in with wins on just three holes, the 7th, 10th and 15th, but as Crosby was 79 with his own ball, they had a best ball of 76. In the afternoon, Tommie was more like himself and he won five holes, among them the 2nd, where he corraled a "birdie," playing right into the teeth of the gale, and Crosby, not to be outdone, knocked three strokes off his morning round and their best ball was 71. A 71 at "The Burr" on Saturday was one of the greatest achievements of the season and it was brought about by some real top notch golf, such as Welch's 4 on the 2nd, and Crosby's "eagle" on the 11th.

After watching Crosby and Welch in action this season in many tournaments the writer is of the opinion that they are two of the most promising in the State and as a four ball team will show their heels to any combination in the [illegible]

SHARKEY PLANS TO SET PACE

Hub Heavyweight Looks for Early Victory Against Harry Wills

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Jack Sharkey and Harry Wills are marking time today as they await the call to action in their 15 round battle, which will be staged at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night under the direction of Humbert Fugazy.

The two heavyweights [illegible] light limbering up exercises today. The grind of the training camp is behind them. They now await with keen interest [illegible] the Brooklyn baseball orchard. With the world's series now a matter of history, everybody is steamed up over the clash between [illegible] this sensational [illegible] the aged negro who has been so cleverly avoided by Dempsey and Tunney.

Jack Conway

Wills started a 7 to [illegible] favorite in the betting today. The surprising thing to me is the large sums of money being bet on Sharkey. Jack's backers [illegible] money [illegible] the fistic market.

Tunney's defeat of Dempsey is the chief reason for the Sharkey boom. The pickers seem to believe that Wills will be battling old age and inactivity as well as Sharkey in the ring tomorrow night. They believe that if the Boston heavyweight forgets the fact Wills is considered the world's best heavyweight by many experts and goes in and fights his regular battle that he has a fine chance to come through with a victory.

I understand from Sharkey that his plan of battle calls for him to set a terrific pace for the first five rounds of the battle. He believes that such a method will wear the aged Wills down. I talked with Sharkey today and found him supremely confident of winning.

"I realize this is my opportunity to prove I am entitled to a bout for the championship with Gene Tunney," said Jack. "I am in the best condition of my career and prepared to give everything I have in a fighting line from the time the bell sounds at the opening of the first frame.

I stopped at Grupp's Gym and saw the negro in his final training work. He [illegible] perfect. [illegible] rumors [illegible] before a [illegible] signs of [illegible] kind as Harry [illegible] the big bag for two rounds, worked the shadow [illegible] two rounds each with Jack Townsend, Jeff Clark and Homer Cooper.

Wills [illegible] very powerful and punches [illegible] He is not nearly as fast as Sharkey, but this may prove his undoing. The [illegible] drive [illegible] can use [illegible] have [illegible] ing with [illegible] Sharkey will try to keep the battle at long range as Wills [illegible] most [illegible] when fighting neck to neck.

Ordinarily Sharkey could [illegible] expect [illegible] boxing. Wills [illegible] as Harry's home town. As [illegible] last Summer Wills [illegible] Then came the [illegible] over the Dempsey-Tunney [illegible] Wills [illegible] attempt to stop [illegible] charge that the [illegible] was a fake and the popular victory of Tunney, a New York boy.

Tunney Learned Rudiments of the Fistic Profession From Old Masters

CHAPTER SEVEN

This is the seventh chapter of Gene Tunney's own story—written by himself of his life and fighting career, written exclusively for the Boston Evening American.

By GENE TUNNEY
World's Heavyweight Champion

MY first professional manager was "Doc" Bagley. Andy Crowley had told "Doc" about me and my prospects. I enlisted in the Marines and kept up a correspondence with Bagley while I was training at Quantico and later when I went to France.

Gene Tunney

Between drills, when I was learning the difference between a bayonet and an oyster fork, I boxed. Although the training regimen was rather stiff, I took time to read.

I began to tackle Darwin and other great writers on evolution. This sort of self education enabled me some years later—during the famous Scopes trial—to astound an estimable and poetic lady, who always had thought a pugilist akin to the Neaderthal Skull.

Instinctively, I turned to my studies whenever time or opportunity permitted. I was richly rewarded.

Although my mind was largely occupied with the war, what it meant to the world, to America and what it meant to Gene Tunney, I had not forgotten that I had a vital problem to settle.

This problem was: Should I lay away the boxing gloves forever, except to indulge in fisticuffs as an exercise? Was boxing a game worthy of a man of ambition? Was I fitted for professional work in the ring?

Boxing History Shows Upward Trend

I decided to permit chance and destiny to shape my opinions and buckled down to work in the Marines. I studied the history of boxing. I read "Boxiana" by Pierce Egan and then perused "Pugilistica," a history of the game from Jim Figg and Broughton of the bare knuckle days in the early Eighteenth Century down to John L. Sullivan.

Early in my boxing days, I knew I should have to formulate a system of training that was all my own. Of the several leading trainers, each one is so wrapped up in his particular mode and plan that he is prone to try that plan, and that one exclusively, on all men. This is utterly wrong.

I found that two meals a day, properly balanced and well masticated and SLOWLY EATEN, were better than three or four meals taken haphazardly, at odd hours, and bolted without pity for that game but stubborn organ, the stomach.

I often eat meat, but now I try to substitute eggs, boiled usually, for meat. Then, and since then, I have been deluged with advice on how to eat, how to train and how to box.

When I heard that I was [illegible] ing [illegible] and [illegible] my comments [illegible] I decided that [illegible] my [illegible] to any [illegible] I sat down [illegible] nerves and vital [illegible]

I studied [illegible] Pay[illegible] "Applied Anatomy and Kinesiology" [illegible] "Mechanism of Muscular Movement." I learned about the so-called "solar plexus" blow and found that by striking an opponent under the ribs and in the pit of the stomach he folded up often like a camp chair.

STUDY HELPED A LOT.

There is no [illegible] boxing perfection. [illegible] I had determined to [illegible] I wore [illegible]

When I returned to America "Doc" Bagley was in California. The late Sammy Kelly became my second manager. Kelly was a former featherweight. That was in 1919. That Fall Kelly went to Cuba on racing business.

Kelly left me in charge of Billy Roche, veteran referee. Roche had been one of the experts overseas to see promise in me. Roche was Kelly's representative rather than my manager. He got me four fights in Jersey, which I shall touch on in later chapters.

That Winter I again hooked up with Bagley after a conference we had at the old Stillman's Gymnasium, then on West One Hundred and Twenty-[illegible] street, near Seventh avenue. Kelly was busy with [illegible] interests. He [illegible] agreed that I return to Bagley. I was coming along steadily. I weighed 17[illegible] pounds. In 1923 I purchased my release from Bagley. William Gibson became my pilot.

In Wednesday's article Tunney will describe his early battles in the prize ring.

Young Bride Often Longs for Young Company

By Beatrice Fairfax,

An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage

"I'D give all my money for a thrill like that," sighed the [illegible] little sixteen-year-old bride. "Think of dancing the tango with one of those boys to win a prize! It would be heaven!"

The elderly husband, who sat beside her, watching the exhibition, [illegible] also. He had tried to make his bride happy with gifts of jewels, [illegible] furs, Paris gowns—every [illegible] which could suggest. [illegible] She was [illegible] to her [illegible] and [illegible] before. [illegible] girl [illegible] content [illegible] family living [illegible] two [illegible].

[illegible] Was her [illegible] over before it was [illegible]

The elderly husband [illegible] a good because for a moment he visioned a wife older than the youngster by his side—one who would be content to settle down with him to the mellow peace of home and garden and babies.

Try as they may, two individuals of different generations cannot look at life from the same standpoint. Fifteen and fifty cannot share their good times—at least, not for long.

A young man who chooses a [illegible] from an older generation will find that a sense of mental [illegible] and hopeless boredom soon [illegible] a paradise. There are exceptions, perhaps, to this rule. But don't count on being an exception—it is too much of a gamble.

Nine or ten years' difference in ages between husband and wife may work out well when the husband is the elder.

But however sincere your affection may be for a friend many years older than yourself, restrain that affection to daughterly regard. Do not mistake it for the love which leads to suitable marriage.

Aside from the ideal love and marriage, we all need the companionship and friendship of those who are at about the same stage of life's journey that we have reached. Parents who deny their children youthful companionship are inflicting a real hardship, as the following letter suggests:

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am sixteen and without a mother. My father has recently made a home for me. I take complete care of it, doing all the housework, besides attending high school.

"He is very good to me. But there is one thing that troubles me: He feels it is my place to go out with him on Sundays. When I ask permission to go about with [illegible] friends he feels hurt and asks me what he is going to do all day.

"This makes me very angry, because I can't have as nice a time with my father as I can with my girl friends. I hope you will not think I wish to do anything wild or that I am ungrateful to my father for all he has done for me. On the contrary, I am always thanking him. But I can't see why he always wishes me to be with him.

"He knows the girls I go with and approves of them very much. Why does he object? Please tell me what is right to do. "MAY."

Do you see your young friends throughout the week, May? Is Sunday the only time your father asks you to reserve for him? If so, I would try, if I were you, to leave Saturday as free as possible for the girls. Ask them to tea, then plan trips to the movies with them, and in every way make the most of your school holiday.

But your father is doing so much for you that I agree you should be very grateful and prove your gratitude by being sweet to him and trying to make him happy.

At the same time, it is true youth calls to youth. You need the companionship of friends of your own age. I am sure your father will agree with this, and do all in his power to make his daughter happy in her friendships.

Getting Rid of Dust

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association

IF YOU happen to be employed in dust-producing industries, you will be interested in certain efforts to get rid of the dust. One of the most important of these efforts, especially in the cotton mills, has been to keep the air of the work rooms, the weaving sheds, as nearly as possible saturated with moisture. The dust, absorbing the moisture becomes heavy and immediately falls. In this way the amount that is breathed into the lungs of the operatives, there to act as an irritant is reduced to a minimum. The principle is capable of adaptation in may other industries.

The cotton weavers, however, have often raised strong objection to the air in the weaving sheds because of the personal discomfort it causes them. Unfortunately it is difficult to abolish this practice simply because it greatly increases the efficiency of the weaving process by diminishing the number of breakages of the warped threds.

The discomfort complained of according to the report, can be very greatly diminished by installing electric fans in the sheds. Ventilation is not only a matter of replacing vitiated air with fresh air but also of the cooling power of the fresh air, which largely depends on the rate of movement of the air, which must also be considered as well as its chemical purity and its temperature, whether by the wet or the dry bulb. This knowledge has already been successfully applied to factories, especially those in which there was abnormal heat or humidity. The conclusions drawn by Wyatt and Frazer are interesting.

The cooling power of the air and the bodily comfort of the workers were considerably increased by the particular arrangement of fans adopted.

Without fans the cooling power of the air never reached the minimum standard considered necessary for sedentary workers.

By running the fans at different speeds according to the atmospheric conditions in the shed it was possible to maintain a fairly uniform rate of cooling up to about 83 degrees Fahr., above which more powerful fans would be necessary.

Equally satisfactory results were given by smaller fans effective over the area covered by four looms under the control of one weaver, and operated mechanically by the looms. The running cost would be almost negligible, and the weaver could switch them on and off as he liked.

Even a Mother Must Earn Her Child's Love

By LUCY LOWELL

LOVE [illegible] not a thing that is because it ought to be.

Sympathy, respect, consideration—such are of the mind and may be [illegible] consciously. They may be given on demand.

But love must be won. No association, no nearness of kinship can say, "Love is due me because I am who I am."

New Martha Lee Contest

own Homemaker's Contest, especially planned for the women of Boston and New England.

If you've a working knowledge of a kitchen range, know the A, B, C's of sweeping, dusting, general housework routine—in fact, have a speaking acquaintance with any department of housekeeping—you're eligible to enter Martha's Homemaker's Contest and have a good chance to win a nice pot of gold for yourself.

One thousand shining new dollars will be awarded for the best answers to just one simple housekeeping question a day for thirty three days. Think of a daily investment of five minutes time for one short month bringing you handfuls of Uncle Sam's finest, newest gold pieces.

BIG PRIZES FOR WINNERS.

This is the way the money is going to be divided.

The one who sends in the best answers to these thirty questions wins the first prize of $500.00. Think how much that money would mean to you when you start making out your Christmas list or if you have your eye on a fur coat! The second prize is $150—no small sum at that. Then comes the third prize of $75, a fourth of $30 and a fifth of $20. Those winning the next ten prizes will receive $10 each, and the twenty-five who are considered almost as good will each win $5.

There you have it—one thousand perfectly good dollars to be given away to the forty women who answer the questions as the judges think most satisfactory.

Now you are thinking that [illegible] are going to be difficult questions. Honestly, our only worry [illegible] you're going to think they're [illegible] simple. Here are a few sample questions—"What does it mean [illegible] leaves the side of the baking [illegible]" "Do popovers require a medium or hot oven?" "How do you remove mildew?" "Do you use baking powder or soda with [illegible]" Just think of getting five hundred, shining gold dollars for answering thirty three such questions correctly.

Remember there isn't an if, and or but about this contest, not a string or a catch! We don't even ask you to buy a Boston American to get the coupons that will be published in connection with this contest. You may trace one from your neighbor's paper if you wish.

The questions will be easy—this we promise you, but you know yourself how housekeeping opinions differ, how many answers are possible to even the easiest question and how helpful it is to learn of other people's favorite short cuts. Then, too, don't forget that even the easiest housekeeping problem is shrouded in a bit of mystery for the bride. We want every single woman in New England to have an even chance in this contest. So whether you're 18 or 80, are cooking for two, or the mother of a flock, get in line for your share of that $1000.

STARTS OCTOBER 14TH

The Contest starts October 14th and runs for thirty-three days until November 20th—just the right season of the year to enjoy a contest, when we have the household running smoothly for the fall, the children in school and plenty of time to sit down a minute or two to jot down the answers to the daily question.

The three judges will be Mrs. Ida M. Hebbard, President of the Housekeeper's League, Miss Alice Bradley, Principal of Miss Farmer's School of Cookery, and your own Martha Lee, Household Economist of the Boston Evening American.

Acting with these judges will be a special Advisory Committee including Mrs. Della T. Lutes, Housekeeping Editor of the Modern Priscilla, Caroline S. Saunders, Director of Home Economics at La Salle Seminary and Mrs. Gladys B. Jones of the Garland School of Homemaking.

Linen Hints

BEFORE you visit the table linen counters you should have your mind made up as to whether you will purchase tablecloths, luncheon cloths, luncheon sets, napkins, tray cloths or centerpieces.

In taking [illegible] you will have to decide whether you will buy (a) all linen, (b) union, part linen and part cotton, (c) mercerized cotton or (d) non mercerized cotton. You may [illegible] to make up your mind whether the weave shall be damask (a smooth cloth with the pattern woven in) or homespun, a heavy cloth in plain weave.

If you can decide something about the pattern before you leave home you can finish your shopping early and avoid the crowds. Patterns in tablecloths are based both on the kind of pattern and the shape it takes on the cloth. Some cloths are bordered all around, some bordered in circular design, some in oblong design, some bordered on the sides only and some have a round pattern covering the whole cloth.

If you prefer a pattern in a spot, a strip, a floral conventional or geometrical design and can ask to see cloths with this pattern it will help matters greatly. Some cloths come in exclusive designs which are copied from china, furniture or upholstery. These exclusive designs are named and are a mark of quality, as they are of good design and are used only on the best grades of linens.

If you wish to buy table cloths by the yard, remember that they are sold in 1, 1¼, 1½, 2, 2¼ and 2½ yards in width. An extra wide size of 3 yards is also made.

Pattern cloths and small cloths suitable for luncheon and tea come in the following sizes:

One yard by 1 yard, 1¼ yards by 1¼ yards; 1½ yards by 1½ yards, 2 yards by 2, 2½, 3, 3½ and 4 yards; 2¼ yards by 2¼, 2½, 3½ and 4 yards; 3 yards by 2½, 3, 3½, 4, etc., to 6 yards (the cloth may be used on a 60-inch round table, 2¼ yards by 4 yards), which may be used on a square table of 54 inches or a 66 inch round table.

To appear at the best advantage a cloth should hang from 9 to 12 or 13 inches over the edge of the table. Remember this when you select a round cloth which comes in the following sizes: 36, 45, 54, 64, 68 and [illegible] inches.

Guard the Child's Physiaue

By L. Lamar Matthews

FIFTY-FOUR first-grade children met the gaze of the new teacher as she entered the schoolroom.

That first week was a very hard one for the inexperienced teacher. The overcrowded room, the demoralized pupils, the newness of it all were distracting.

One day after repeatedly telling the small boys to "keep still," or to "stop talking," or to "sit down," she chanced to look around and see one little fellow half-standing at his desk. With one fell swoop she was beside him, and giving him a sound shake, she sat him down with force and decision.

A hurt look came into the gentle eyes of the little boy—a look that haunted her for years. He said not a word, neither did he show any resentment. He just sat there very still the rest of the afternoon.

And when he arose with the class to march out at 2 o'clock—the teacher saw that infantile paralysis had left its fearful mark upon his young body.

Then because she was really [illegible] and loving down underneath [illegible] surface irritation, she reproached herself bitterly for her impatience with that little cripple.

I am also reminded of a story that I heard a man [illegible] regarding his defective [illegible]. "I was a great big boy," he said, "before I knew that there was anything wrong with my eyes. And I'm sure that my mother did not know I had any eye trouble. When she was hearing my lessons and I kept making blunders in reading she used to scold or slap me. She thought I was not paying any attention. And I couldn't see the word."

Almost every family has a similar case of injustice to a child.

In this connection Dr. Frank Howard Richardson, a noted authority on the human body and the mind, had this to say:

"Can you imagine self reproach keener than that of a conscientious parent who should discover, say, that he had been punishing a child for disobedience to a command which had gone unheard because of an unsuspected deafness? Or that he had been punishing a child for disobedience in failing to sit still for a given length of time when he afterward learned that sitting still was physiologically quite impossible."

The WOMAN GAME or "GLITTER" by KATHARINE BRUSH

A Story of College Life; a Fast and Furious Romance

CHAPTER XLII.

TO be sure, there were things about it that he found annoying. The way men stared at Yvonne, for example. With eyes that fairly drooled. And the way they laid familiar hands on her arm or her shoulder in passing and praised her singing, or begged her to dance with them.

These things were particularly annoying because nothing could be done about them. Jock spasmodically expressed a burning desire to "smash their mucker faces for 'em," and was forever breaking off in the midst of sentences to glower at some nearby table and to growl, sotto voce, "Pull your necks in, damn you!"

But further than this he did not go, realizing that his hands were tied by the subservience of his position, and in time he became so accustomed to such trifling indignities that they ceased altogether to affect him.

And then, the women. "The fool females," to use the mildest of Jock's long list of invectives. They lavished upon the good-looking young banjo player constant and most unwelcome attentions. They broke into languishing smirks whenever he inadvertently gazed in their direction. They converted the waiters into messengers and dispatched them to his table with invitations to join their various parties.

Or they sent their escorts to try to exchange dances with him. Or sometimes if they were sufficiently intoxicated, they came themselves. . . .

One night a girl with startling orange lips in a chalk-white face, swayed unsteadily up to him as he and Yvonne were leaving the floor and threw her arms about his neck and called him her "sheik." She had to be pried loose and dragged back to her seat by her flustered partner and the head waiter.

This incident, coming as it did soon after Jock's introduction to Terrace Tavern, very nearly nipped his new career in the bud, so great was his horror and dismay.

And once in a while—just once in a while, when he knelt on the oval of polished floor in the flaming spotlight, or when he took his pay envelope from August Schultz, or when he contemplated himself attentively in the looking-glass—a small, faint something stirred in him. And he thought of college, books, courses. Learning . . . "good Lord, was it for this?"

Thought, also, of the time when he had fancied himself a man marked for glory, he, who now strummed Blues for Yvonne to sing to, and asked no greater boon of Fortune!

But these flies in the ointment were few and far between, and the ointment was rich, plentiful, anesthetic. Time lounged on. It was April, and the Hamills moved into New York. Yvonne, ever exciting, just around the corner.

It was July, and his mother had gone to York Harbor. And Bones Allen, from Paris, was sending him characteristic postcards. "The French women are 'way overrated,'" said one of them tersely.

He lay abed every morning and took a combination breakfast and lunch with Yvonne, either at her apartment, where they made electric coffee and electric toast and chafing-dish scrambled eggs, or at his own apartment, where the ubiquitous Bennett served them.

Then they sallied forth. Sometimes to a matinee. Sometimes to a vaudeville show, for business reasons. Sometimes to buy new jazz selections at a little Broadway shop, and take them back and try them out together. Sometimes, if the day was hot, to scoot into the country in the roadster, or to swim at some not too populous beach. That is, Jock swam.

Yvonne merely waded, or sat on the sand in a one-piece black suit with her unbound hair blazing about her face, and watched. "Swimming is not in my line," she would say, "and I never let anyone see me do anything I don't know how to do well."

And nights. Glamorous, glittering, bright white nights. "Playboy nights," Jock termed them. They went out to Terrace Tavern every evening about seven, returned every morning about one. They laughed a great deal, and danced a great many dances together, and a few with suppliant patrons when they could not discreetly avoid it.

August Schultz liked to have his entertainers appear unofficially, and mingle with his guests. "Good business," said August which meant that it was Law. Their work improved more and more, and, in response to public demand, they performed three times every evening instead of twice, giving each time several encores.

"As nearly as I can ascertain," reported Saunders Lincoln in a letter to Mrs. Hamill at York Harbor, "he is entirely happy. Tickled with what he's doing and the way he's living. Bennett tells me he spends every waking minute with the girl . . . he seems as enthralled as ever" . . .

Which he was. Yvonne's was a lure that did not wane with proximity, a luster that the passage of months did not rub dull. And if occasionally there were incidents, perceptions, that vexed him—little things she did and said, little surprising streaks of alloy—he forgot them all in a second when she smiled.

He kissed her countless times a day, hungrily . . . with a mounting hunger that tore at him. . . . He could have satisfied the hunger, and knew it, but he would not, and wished that he did not know. That was one of the things that vexed him. His love for Yvonne transcended flesh, for the time being anyway. He wanted very much to believe that hers for him did also.

They would be married in late February, when their year was over. No sooner. Jock had long since abandoned the struggle to dissuade Yvonne from her stand, for she was adamant. They agreed to stay on at Terrace Tavern until the first of the month, at which time Jock would secure for himself a position in some advertising office (he had decided that advertising was to be his ultimate vocation) and Yvonne would buy her trousseau.

Regarding this last, Jock gave implicit instructions. "Not a damn stitch in it that you had—before," he commanded, the closest approach he had ever made to reference to her life with Demorest.

He talked incessantly of February, so absorbed in plans and prospects that he failed to notice how often Yvonne tried to change the subject, how wistfully, almost hopelessly, her big gray eyes caressed his face as she listened . . .

BEAUTY HINTS

At night wash your face very gently with luke-warm water, then put in cold cream and rub off the excess. You may like to use hot olive oil and a few drops of benzoin instead of cream.

Be sure to choose a cream that is nourishing, a skin food. All astringent and vanishing creams are drying.

In the morning use more of this skin food or else hot oil, then wash your face with cold water softened by borax in the proportion of one teaspoonful to a quart of water. Keep your brushes and wash-cloths immaculately clean, drying them in sunshine.

There are many successful methods of combating blackheads. Much depends on the individual skin. The two methods I have suggested for the oily and dry skin, respectively, should, if they are carried out accurately, bring excellent results.

Gertrude's wedding day.

Long before it was really light Aunt Kitty laid her fingers on Rosemary's shoulder and woke her. "Sh . . ." cautioned Aunt Kitty, holding a skinny finger to her lips. "Sh-hh." For Gertie was to sleep late.

Ma was the general, bossing everything. Now she was in the parlor, giving a last polish to the piano stool and now she was back in the kitchen chopping celery for the chicken salad.

They were all having the time of their lives but Gertie. Poor Gertie! Why didn't she just sneak off quietly somewhere with Al and have her wedding her own way instead of letting Ma and Aunt Kitty [illegible] everything.

"When I'm married," Rosemary said to herself, "When I'm married, it will be MY wedding, not Ma's or Aunt Kitty's or Millie's. You could see Al was enjoying every minute of it. There! her mascara was running. What a mess. There'd be no Aunt Kitty at Rosemary's wedding.

At her wedding—if she ever had any wedding.

Rosemary's hands flew to her throat.

"And a kiss for little sister!" Al, the happy bridegroom, pressed moist, soft lips on hers.

Advice to the Lovelorn

THERE ARE OTHER GIRLS.

WHEN you lose the dearest girl of all, is it better to break your heart with grief or to remember there are other girls in the world, possibly just as sweet and find them? A. L., writer of the following letter, has decided on the latter course of action:

"Dear Miss Fairfax, I am twenty-eight years old. Recently I lost the girl I cared for, probably because of the difference in our ages. She is only seventeen. I find myself without friends, for nothing in all the world interests me but her. I have to fight my own temperament, which makes me most miserable.

"I know there are other girls as pretty as her and some may be sweeter. I wonder how I could get in touch with them.

"What do you advise me to do, please?

"I am getting run-down and am threatened with nervous collapse over this lost sweetheart. I think it would help me greatly to become interested in other women. A.L."

YOUR idea of finding other interests to help you forget is sound, A. L. Giving up oneself to disappointment is cowardly and useless.

I cannot advise you to advertise for a wife, however. The happiest, most successful marriage are those that begin with friendship, which slowly, naturally deepens into understanding affection.

Why do you not join in the activities of the nearest church of your denomination? You might also take an active part in some charity. Or join night study classes in some absorbing subject where you will meet both men and girls. The work connected with any or all of these activities will keep you too busy to brood over your loss and they will inevitably lead to your meeting earnest, attractive young women, who should prove congenial. Try to win the interest and friendship of these girls by proving yourself a loyal friend, before you talk of love. All success to you.

Household Hints

Young green peas should be cooked in just sufficient water to cover them. Add a sprig of mint a little salt and sugar and allow the peas to simmer slowly with the lid off the saucepan until they are nearly tender and the water almost evaporated. Then add a good-sized piece of butter or margarine and allow the peas to finish cooking.

And a [illegible] deep within me asked an insistent,

"Don't you see there are breakers ahead, Anne?"

A fortnight after Jim and I separated, I began going in my office [illegible] a week, [illegible] but once. A [illegible] I had never [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] fifty thousand! [illegible] at the end of a year. A quarter of a million dollars' worth of business.

I began figuring some more. Fed and [illegible] sped my brain. Faster and faster went my pencil. Salaries, [illegible] stenographers at thirty a week, fifteen thousand. Rent ten [illegible]. Printing costs another ten thousand. Overhead — generously [illegible] —fifteen thousand. Paper, [illegible], light and sundries, five [illegible]. Incidentals such as entertainment, another ten thousand. [illegible] five thousand. Corporation tax for State and [illegible] five thousand. [illegible] rapidly. Thus lavishly [illegible] a basis of outside [illegible] the [illegible] cost one hundred and [illegible] thousand. Say a hundred and twenty-five.

That left a hundred and twenty-five thousand clear profit. Fifty thousand must go back into the business. Seventy-five for the partners. [illegible] meant that I'd be earning [illegible] forty thousand dollars. [illegible] never done so well in his [illegible]. At this rate I could have a [illegible] car and a chauffeur in [illegible] in the country for [illegible] A fine suite in [illegible] season.

"[illegible] see just what is fifty-five per cent of seventy-five thousand," I asked myself.

[illegible] I stared with [illegible] at the total and [illegible] to make sure. Yes, that was [illegible] it read. I rolled it over on my tongue, saying it aloud with relish.

EXPERIENCE OF WESTERN GIRL

Found Cannery Work Too Tiring

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did [illegible] and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 652 North Front St., Salem, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

VERILA, My Daughter, she that weddeth a rich man, becometh the barometer of his appetite, the guardian of his digestion, the censor of his diet, the consort of his butler, the decoration of his dinner table, the guiding star of his menage, and the butt of his dyspepsia.

But, she that weddeth a poor man, entereth the Kitchen Door, which is the Gate-to-Woman's-Purgatory. Yea, over that portal is written:

"Let those who enter HERE, leave all hope of gratitude behind."

For, out of that gateway hath never yet come ANYTHING that was not too cold or too hot, too fresh or too salt, too green or too ripe, too rich or too plain, "overdone" or "underdone," too flat or too savory!

Then, let every Bride make this her supplication before she loweth away [illegible].

DAILY SHORT STORY

DOGS AND ALL

By F. H. Sweet

THE beginning of the trouble, or luck, was that two setter dogs [illegible] to the little [illegible] of the [illegible] rest of the [illegible].

[illegible] the first dog he had ever owned!

Among these was a somersault, done at the command of "Flipflap." [illegible] sometimes the dog did it of his own [illegible] It took Archie [illegible] hundreds of [illegible] was perfected. Then he named his dog Acrobat.

Archie took the dog to the park for an hour's exercise each day after work. One afternoon some little girls were playing with him in front of the settee where Archie sat reading. Presently one of the children took off her pink hair ribbon and fastened it about Acrobat's neck.

When she sought to remove it later, the dog objected, seeming to regard it as a desirable gift. Archie went to the rescue but the girl smilingly asked him to leave it on.

"I didn't suppose he would like it so," she said. "I'd a lot rather he'd keep it now—honest I would. I'll think of him as wearing my colors."

The next day Archie went back to the same settee. [illegible] wearing the pink ribbon [illegible] the underbrush in [illegible]. Presently [illegible] there was [illegible] to [illegible] bushes.

"Some sort of [illegible]," thought Archie. "[illegible] colors now. [illegible] into a scrap over [illegible] ward [illegible]. Seems [illegible] of them over there." [illegible] voices of [illegible] playful barking came [illegible] beyond the bushes.

Then Archie went back to his paper and was next [illegible].

"Come here, [illegible]."

He shot a quick glance [illegible] the speaker, then raised his paper higher. But it was not to read now. He wanted to look at the girl. She was well worth looking at and the paper served as a screen. Then he realized what he was doing, [illegible] and turned his back resolutely.

A dog threw himself into his lap, curled up into a contented little ball for about a second, then flung his body wildly into the air at the passing of a butterfly. Almost at the touching of the feet to the ground they left it in a whirling somersault that scarcely checked the dog's speed.

Apparently the [illegible] was not accustomed to being [illegible] manner, for [illegible] uncertain [illegible] dog snapped [illegible].

"Oh, you wicked [illegible]!" cried the girl on the [illegible] voice full of amaze[illegible] reproach. "Kill a poor little butterfly! Jump on [illegible] gentleman's lap instead of coming to me, as ordered.

"And—however [illegible] that cute whirl [illegible] shown? You certainly [illegible] clown. Come here now, sir, and let me punish you—and praise you. Come, I say."

The dog cocked his head on one side and looked at her. The girl declared afterward that he winked. Then he made a few swift whirls after his tail, which brought him near Archie's feet. From there he jumped to his lap.

"You—wretch!" cried the girl, half-angry, half-laughing, as she rose quickly and came toward them, "you're doing this just to tease me. And gentlemen don't like to hold dogs."

"I beg your pardon, sir," to Archie, "but please touch him gently with this stick. He deserves it. Dogs ought to be made to mind. But I—I hate to punish him myself. If you do it, maybe he'll learn not to be so familiar. And still looking at the dog lying contentedly in Archie's lap, "you must like dogs."

"I do like this one. We've had some very nice times together."

"But he's my dog. You never saw him before."

"I think there is some mistake."

"But there isn't," she declared. "There can't be. See the ribbons on his neck, with my name on it and his name, too."

Archie looked at the blue ribbon. Yes, he hadn't noticed it before, but on one side was embroidered CLOWN, and on the other FLORENCE DINGHAM.

"You're right," he admitted, looking puzzled. "But——"

"That proves he's my dog," she exclaimed triumphantly.

"Suppose you sit down on the bench with me," he suggested, "and I'll put Acrobat—or Clown—on the ground, and we'll see who he comes to."

The girl sat down, but shook her head.

"That won't prove anything," she demurred. "Clown's in a teasing mood today. Remember how he disobeyed, and he winked at me—I declare he did. There, I told you so!" The dog sprang straight back into Archie's lap after being placed on the ground. "He deserves a whipping."

"Puzzles me," confessed Archie. "This is certainly Acrobat, [illegible] when I brought him here [illegible] on a pink ribbon and it was [illegible]. But wait a minute.

"Acrobat," he exclaimed peremptorily, "flipflap!"

Instantly the dog's hind legs bent a little on Archie's knees, [illegible] straightened into a spring [illegible] somersaulted him to his feet several yards away. There he turned and stood on his hind legs, looking from one to the other as though for applause. It came, mixed with something like consternation [illegible] girl's part.

"Please yourself," [illegible] Archie.

The dog hooped himself so his open mouth touched the [illegible] of his tail, then whirled in a mad effort to grasp it until the head and tail divisions of the circle could scarcely be distinguished.

"Like him to show off some more?" began Archie, then, seeing the other's utter bewilderment and even misery of her face, he relented.

"I just wanted to make my point," he said contritely. "You may have him now. He's a bully dog, and—"

"I don't want him," she said with dignity. "But look!"

A little dog in pink ribbon darted from the underbrush and [illegible] into her lap. Archie's face [illegible].

"Children changed the ribbons," he exclaimed.

"We [illegible] can't leave them," said Archie. "Never would see them [illegible] went off. Better stay a few minutes till they come back."

An hour passed, and then the dogs ran from the shrubbery as though to see if they were still there, but instantly scurried off.

Another hour passed. It was growing dark. The girl seemed disturbed.

"[illegible] Clown don't come soon I'll have to go," she said. "I'll be afraid to go through all these dark [illegible]."

"[illegible] home with you, of course," [illegible] answered. "But yonder [illegible] Clown now. You'll bring Clown again tomorrow?" he asked as she rose. "They're so fond of each other it would be a shame not to give them another chance together."

"Y-es, I suppose I'd better come—it's fun to watch them."

Three weeks later, side by side one afternoon on a settee with the dogs playing about, Archie calmly slipped his arm around the girl.

"It's wonderful how fast those dogs have brought things about," he mused. "You said yes, your father said yes, and he turned out to be the senior partner in the firm where I was superintendent. Now he's taken me in. And—But say, just look at those dogs!"

MEDBURY SAYS---

THERE are so many wonderful accident insurance policies on the market today that the average man can't afford not to get hurt.

ONE company pays as high as five thousand dollars for an arm. This is much more than you can get at any second hand store.

BUT the company won't give you anything for fingers or thumbs. They have no resale value.

ONE man lost three fingers the other day and they wouldn't pay him a cent, but they helped him look for them.

THE only reason he wanted to find them was that one of the fingers had a string around it to remind him of something his wife asked him to bring home.

AFTER hunting for three weeks, all that the insurance company could find was a thumb.

THEY wrapped it up and shipped it to him C. O. D.

BUT it didn't do him any good because it was for the left hand.

SO he had it manicured and sent it back to them.

HE looked for his fingers for two months and finally remembered that he left them in his gloves.

THE next day he telegraphed them that he'd lost a leg and they wired him to look in his socks.

HE answered the same day and said that his stocking was empty.

SO they told him to wait until Christmas eve and Santa Claus would fill it.

ONE fellow wrote the insurance company and asked them how much they'd pay him for a broken nose.

THEY replied that they wouldn't pay him anything because they couldn't use it.

THEY did tell him, however, that if his nose got broken again, they'd give him enough money to get a divorce.

STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All druggists.

Zippy Zipper Coats are made of suede leather and are fashioned up the front and across the pockets with the convenient zipper arrangement, in former years only seen on tobacco pouches, but lately used for purses, frocks and numerous other articles. Crown jewels still sparkle in a vastly different way than when they glistened in the golden crowns of monarchs. In the kingdom of women's millinery they sparkle in odd ornaments, pinned at one side of the high, draped crowns of the most stunning hats.

Far From Penury

Dean Inge's Moans Silly

Britain's specialist in gloom, Dean Inge, has uttered the latest in a series of recent wails at the poverty and decline of his countrymen, coupled, of course, with the usual jibe at "Shylock."

It is too bad he emitted that jeremiad before Garet Garrett had made available here the astonishing figures in the latest official British Statistical Abstract, for they tend to make the dean's moans sound woozy.

For example, comparing 1924 with 1914, Britain shows:

An increase of 70 per cent. in the number of persons having incomes of $15,000 to $25,000 a year; an increase of 84 per cent. in those with incomes of $25,000 to $50,000, and an increase of 82 per cent. in the $50,000 to $500,000 group, above which the percentage of increase drops to 50.

That isn't all. British postal savings deposits in this decade grew 40 per cent.; trustee savings bank deposits, 50 per cent.; building society assets, 120 per cent., and assets of all classes of industrial and provident societies, 140 per cent.

Now, allowing generously for the dollar's inflation since the war's beginning, these figures are hard to reconcile with the effigy of John Bull lately so often posed as that of a ragged and tottering soul in the last stages of want.

These same official figures show that Britain still has FIFTEEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS LOANED ABROAD, producing eleven hundred million dollars of annual interest, or nearly SIX TIMES the sum she pays us yearly on the debt. And despite hard times at home these foreign investments of hers are steadily increasing, the rate of increase being still more than double the rate of her payments to us.

Needless to say, this exhibit of British wealth and strength is very gratifying to Americans, for it is best for all to have prosperity general.

Britain did both the courageous and expedient thing when she volunteered to pay her debt and proudly refused to quibble over terms, thus vindicating again her world-wide reputation for integrity.

The present unofficial effort of various Britons to recede from that high stand and substitute an abusive type of mendicancy is happily without basis in need and will not, we trust, become the fashion.

Salem a "Flag Stop?"

That Is What They Hear, and Mr. Homer Loring Will Have to Fight Essex County

Chairman Homer Loring's plan to abandon the trackage of his Eastern Division beyond Portsmouth, N. H., reducing the status of this end of the Division to what resentful communities describe as that of a "branch," is meeting with opposition all along the line.

The City of Portsmouth, appropriating $2,500 for ammunition, has retained Edgar J. Rich, Esq., formerly the Boston & Maine's general counsel, who calls the Loring plan "shortsighted" and says it should fail. "Permit any such curtailment as this," Mr. Rich says, "and Portsmouth may just as well say good-bye to any hope of new industries."

In Newburyport, the News takes the position that if the time has come when "the Maine" can no longer serve Lynn, Salem, Beverly, Ipswich and that city, an invitation should be extended to the Canadian National, to extend its lines from Portland.

"If the Boston & Maine abandons the Eastern Division," President Ernest Foss of the Chamber of Commerce says, "it will have failed in its duty to the public and the Legislature should be asked to revoke its franchise."

But conservative old Salem appears to be the most angry of them all! Hearing that the Boston & Maine is to introduce a gasoline motor-train, and indignant enough over that, Salem has looked into the book and discovered that the gasoline train stops at the Witch City "only on flag signal." This is called "adding insult to injury." According to The News, of Salem:

> "This is a situation that is, of course, intolerable and if money is needed the City Council is expected to follow the lead of the other cities and towns all along the Division and appropriate its share toward carrying on the fight that apparently is sure to come."

The chances are Mr. Loring did not EXPECT his plan to be popular, at least in the sense that these Massachusetts and New Hampshire communities would be erecting monuments to him. He said at the State House, when he was wielding the pruning knife up there on behalf of the taxpayer, that no man could be "popular" in that position who was worth his salt to the State.

In his present much more difficult job, Mr. Loring is working first of all for the owners of Boston & Maine securities. There is a limit to how far he can go in the direction of the curtailments he appears to have in mind, as will be seen when the Legislatures settle down to business at Concord and on Beacon Hill.

A Plan Delayed

But We Wish Them Luck

The League of Nations, with Uncle Sam out of it, should be an excellent thing for Europe, as our union of States insuring peace from the Atlantic to the Pacific is good for the United States.

Germany, in the League, is enthusiastically received, tears are shed by hardened diplomats as the enemy of 1914 shakes hands with the Allies, and Stresemann promises for Germany realization of "the Divine Plan of friendship between nations."

You can only say that if that IS the Divine Plan, it has been postponed a long time.

The French are evidently sincere in their belief that with Germany in the League there is more hope of peace. And the confidence of France is reflected in the reduction of the French army, with 3,900 officers retired, young men taken into the army at twenty-one instead of twenty, and 170 military establishments changed to civil use.

All that is the best news from Europe in a long time.

If they want to stop fighting, they can stop fighting. We wish to Heaven they would, and stop borrowing our billions one day and "cursing us out" the next.

RAISING OF MONEY FOR BENEVOLENCE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ARE endowed colleges, churches, hospitals and similar institutions good things or not?

Most people think they are, but others question it. Some say that an institution becomes merely a house, furnishing a living to a lot of sinecures.

An institution is probably looked at most justly when it is regarded as the community's own tax upon itself. It then becomes a democratic affair because it is supported by the people and they have a constant right to criticize it. If their criticism becomes too severe and is thought to be well founded, the institution has difficulty in raising any more money.

It is for this reason that large givers like John D. Rockefeller usually agree to contribute only a part and require the public to come in on the other part. This avoids resting the institution peculiarly upon the gift of one man and makes it responsible to the public.

If institutions are a public benefit—if it is good to have a hospital or a church, a university or an organization—then they should be supported by organized effort.

One of the outstanding figures today in organized philanthropic money raising is Charles S. Ward, of Flushing, Long Island. He is the originator of the intensive method by which instead of letting a worthy cause drag along for years, a group of interested men get together and get the job done in a week or ten days. He has engineered the raising of some of the largest amounts ever given by the public. One feat was the securing of the first $100,000,000 for the Red Cross during the War.

Besides raising hundreds of millions during the War, Mr. Ward and his associates have since directed the raising of more than $400,000,000 for hospitals, colleges, churches, Christian associations, Boy and Girl Scouts, orphanages, homes for the aged, and institutions for human betterment.

His plan is to gather together voluntary helpers and organize them. Months of preparatory work is often necessary. The work of solicitation is done by voluntary workers, prominent men who give up their time for a definite period during the campaign. But in order that their labors may not be wasted by cross purposes, everything is worked out systematically so that at the get-together dinners and meetings, everyone knows just what his work is and does it quickly.

Today all over this country and even in Europe are thousands of buildings and institutions, centres of influence and helpfulness, existing as silent monuments to this method.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY had an argument down at the boarding house the other night.

The new chap—that preachy sort of a guy—started it by saying that "everybody knew that honesty was the best policy."

And Jimmy—who's a regular sorehead—wanted to know how he got that way. He'd believed that old line o' hot air once, too, but he learned better. Honesty the best policy? Not on your life! It was the slick ones that got ahead, not the truthful Thomases.

Why, look at the staff in his office. There was old man Lecky. Worked like a dog all his life, and if ever there was an honest man it was Lecky. Yet there he was at sixty-two, after staying with the same firm for thirty years, and what was he getting? The same old $5 a day.

During that time they'd jumped no end of other fellows over him—slick, gabby fellows who weren't too particular about what they did. Old Squires, for instance. He and Lecky had started in together, and no one could say that Squires had the better brain. And he wouldn't work half as hard. But he had slick ways with him and he wasn't fussy how he used it. Everyone knows the way he put over that Nicholas deal. Yet today Squires is drawing down his $6,000 a year and sitting pretty. Does that look as if honesty was the best policy?

It depends on what you call "the best policy."

What Is "Best Policy"?

If the best policy means the job with the biggest salary—if it means fine clothes and highpowered cars and apartment houses—if it means favors and flattery and your name on the front page—then we might as well acknowledge that honesty often may not be the best policy for the moment. We don't like to acknowledge that

But in our craven hearts we sometimes feel that it does not always pay to be 100 per cent. honest.

For "you cannot serve God and Mammon," and if you're long on Truth you're apt to be extremely short on kale in this materialistic world.

Yet, in spite of that, honesty is the best policy—provided you have the right idea of policy.

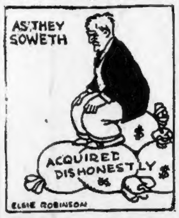
If the "best policy" means playing square with the truth within yourself—

Intelligence Needed.

If it means that sense of clean freedom, and high handed respect which is as silk and cream and real leather upholstering to the spirit of the proud man—

If it means peace and the ability to find content in small things, then indeed honesty is the best policy for you. For honesty combined with intelligence, will bring you all these things.

But that is one very vital point about honesty—it was meant to be combined with intelligence. There's no sense in being merely honest and expecting God to do the rest. If you won't use the good old bean, you're as apt to come to grief as any crook.



Which fact many honest people overlook.

It's quite as necessary to use thought and diplomacy and shrewdness in being good as it is in being bad. And very often the battle of righteousness is lost not by the superior power of evil, but simply because the crooks use their brains and the good people don't.

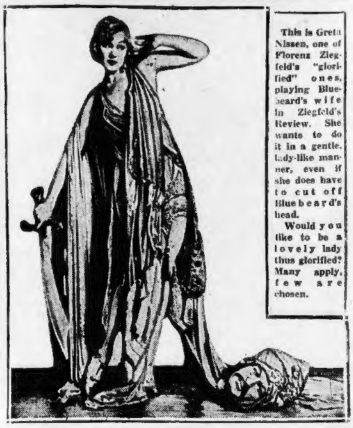
One Glorified Girl

She Looks Shocked



This is Greta Nissen, one of Florenz Ziegfeld's "glorified" ones, playing Bluebeard's wife in Ziegfeld's Review. She wants to do it in a gentle, lady-like manner, even if she does have to cut off Bluebeard's head.

Would you like to be a lovely lady thus glorified? Many apply, few are chosen.

THIS DEAR LITTLE "GLORIFIED" AMERICAN GIRL HAS JUST CHOPPED OFF THE HEAD OF HER WICKED HUSBAND IN ZIEGFELD'S PRESENTATION OF "BLUEBEARD."

In these days what we demand above all is BEAUTY. In automobiles, silk stockings, even in Bluebeard's wife. First comes beauty, with its graceful poses, etc.

You see how admirably this glorified Miss Nissen manages to be the head lady, that is, the lady that cuts off the head, and at the same time conserve her ultra-feminine charm.

She reveals, with tender glance, remorse at having cut off the gentleman's head, just as she reveals a little piece of her thigh, at one side of the picture.

You wonder what the Bluebeard man was doing while this glorified lady was cutting off his head. But, of course, that's another part of the story and has nothing to do with this picture.

Odds and Ends of the Town

GLOBE-TROTTING PLUMBER.

FROM master plumber in MALDEN to explorer for the SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTE, poking into untrekked nooks and crannies of the world, is some shift. GEORGE P. SULLIVAN made it a quarter-century ago and my what he has seen since.

He has travelled more than 100,000 miles, mostly in tropical regions. His last expedition was to the head-hunting Javaro Indian tribes along the Napo and Curraray Rivers in ECQUADOR. He brought back many specimens of shrunken heads and other trophies plus a mass of interesting scientific data. "SULLY" is now in MIAMI outfitting for a trip to SOCIETY ISLANDS.

LAW AND PRESERVES.

The "preserves" in which MARCUS L. URANN, BOSTON barrister, is interested don't come in jars. His game preserve is spread over 2,000 acres in SOUTH HANSON and HALIFAX and it's a well-stocked and interesting tract. MARCUS is an ardent sportsman. He also finds time for law and business. His friends say "M. L. U ESQ." organized what they claim to be the first co-operative outfit in the U. S. A.—to wit, the packing of cranberries along CAPE COD.

A "CASEY" CUB.

STEPHEN H. EDWARDS, ATLANTIC plumber (this seems to be "Plumbers' Day"), is due for a gale of euology when the new clubhouse of NORTH QUINCY COUNCIL, K. of C., is thrown open to the public tomorrow, COLUMBUS DAY. Seventy-three years young, dean of "CASEYS" in QUINCY, and, a mere private in the ranks, "STEVE" rolled his sleeves and said it could be done.

The imposing yellow brick structure, at the corner of Hancock and Hollis avenue, is a monument to his zeal. "STEVE" carried the youngsters with him over the top when financial questions looked dubious and capped the climax by planning the building himself. No wonder they call it "STEVE'S CASTLE." Here's luck and prosperity, fellows.

MAGIC ROOF GARDENER.

Few save those who lived there were aware that perhaps the first roof garden in New England flourished on the Y. W. C. A. home for girls on WARRENTON street, recently sold, in the face of a storm of protest, for a theatrical lodging house. The roof garden was established by KING'S DAUGHTERS more than a quarter century ago. MISS BELLE MUNSEY, chamber girl at the home, native of WISCASSET, cared for the garden. The girls claim BELLE could make flowers bloom on the Sahara Desert.

HARRIET'S "MAUSOLEUM."

MISS HARRIET TIFFANY, Vassar graduate and post-graduate of RADCLIFFE, now a teacher of French in Brooklyn, slept on the roof Winter and Summer, the girls say. MISS TIFFANY had a box built, into which she crawled in snowy weather. Her outdoor night robe, hood attached, looked like an Eskimo shroud and the girls called her roof box "HARRIET'S MAUSOLEUM." MISS TIFFANY was overseas as a war-worker and taught French to the doughboys on the RHINE.

The Living Farm Soil

By Garrett P. Serviss,

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I HAVE been reading Milton Whitney's book on "Soil and Civilization." Milton Whitney is chief of the Bureau of Soils in the Department of Agriculture. At a time when there is a deplorable rush away from the farms this book ought to have a very beneficial influence through the fascinating interest that it imparts to the subject of the soil and the management of the soil.

No man who does not find his work interesting can succeed or be content. The successful farmer is interested in his work because he has learned by experience what Mr. Whitney affirms in the name of science, viz.: that the soil is truly a living thing and not mere inert material.

The intelligent worker on the land can feel a response to his efforts on the side of the soil that he cultivates. It works with him, if he cares for its needs, just as his horses do.

A horse will do twice as much work for one man as for another, because the one has a sympathetic understanding of its needs and its temperament and the other has no such understanding.

In a similar way one man can produce twenty bushels of wheat per acre from a piece of soil that yields only ten bushels to another man. The secret lies in knowing the soil.

There are astonishing differences between soils—astonishing, that is, to those who do not know their peculiarities and how to work in concord with them. But this knowledge comes only from long, as well as intimate, acquaintance.

Not only "stay on the land," but "stay on the same land," seems to be the maxim suggested by the facts that Mr. Whitney sets forth. After showing the relatively brief period during which more than 50 per cent. of American farmers have been accustomed to remain on the same farms, or the same soils, he says:

"Very different are the experiences and customs of the older countries of Europe and Asia. In Germany a man who has had his training on sandy soils would not willingly be taken onto a farm having a clay soil or a moor soil. Germany produces about thirty bushels of wheat per acre while we in this country with our methods produce on an average about sixteen bushels.
